At the Meeting of the School Board on Monday Night.

LIST OF THE PRIZES

Of Interest to the Scholars and Parents and Should be Read Carefully by Everybody.

TE WORK AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

BELLEFONTE, PA., June 3rd. 1907.

To the President and Members of the Bellefonte School Board,

Gentlemen:

I herewith have the honor to present to you my annual report of the schools under your direction.

The past year has been one of progress and increasing interest in the schools. It is with much pleasure and satisfaction to your teachers that we note the manifested interest on the part of the patrons in what is taking place in the work of instructing the young people of our town.

STATISTICS.

School population (6 to 16 years)	891
Total enrollment in Public Schools	733
Attending other schools	160
Over 16 years of age in Public Schools	56
Tuition Pupils	54
Excused by law	69
Under 8 years not attending School	17
Percentage of attendance for term	92

ATTENDANCE

The attendance throughout the term has been good. In comparatively few instances could the absence of pupils be traced to absolutely unnecessary causes. The usual prevalence of children's diseases and long-continued cold weather with its consequent colds and general discomforts of course had some effect upon the attendance especially among the younger children. While the instances of wilful truancy were not frequent, yet too often were we compelled to call upon the attendance officer to investigate. I wish here to call your attention to the satisfactory way in which this officer has performed his duty. He has dealt kindly with each case and the results obtained have been good. During the year 214 cases were investigated, 321 special attendance notices were sent out. In no case was it necessary to report to prosecution.

TARDY PUPILS.

Under a new system we have inaugurated for dealing with the tardy pupil we have obtained results which are surprisingly satisfactory. Out of an aggregate of 228240 sessions there were only 456 cases of tardiness. The interest and constant watchfulness on the part of the teachers have much to do with this good record.

PROMOTION.

We have endeavored to maintain a high standard of efficiency for promotion. An exceptionally large percentage of pupils has been promoted to higher classes and where those have failed of promotion the cause has in nearly every instance been traced to indifference or lack of interest on the part of the pupil.

PRIZES.

Through the generosity of Col. W. F. Reynolds, J. C. Meyer, Esq., Mr. George R. Meek, Harry Keller, Esq., and the Bellefonte Chapter of the American Revolution we have been enabled to continue offering prizes to these pupils who excel in various lines of work. The prizes this year have been awarded as follows:

The General Excellence prize given by Col. W. F. Reynolds to that member of the Graduating class who shall maintain the highest standing during the course through the High School, has been awarded to Clair M. Seibert.

The Biographical prize of ten dollars offered by Mr. J. C. Meyer to that member of the Senior class who writes the best essays on prominent Americans has been awarded to Miss Harriet Ray.

The Mathematical prize of ten dollars offered by Harry Keller, Esq., to that member of the Senior class acquiring the highest average in Mathematics has been awarded to Clair M. Seibert.

The first prize of ten dollars in the Junior Declamatory Contest has been awarded to Miss A. Miles, the second prize of five dollars to Miss Rachael E. Shuey. These prizes are offered by Col. W. F. Reynolds.

The Spelling prize of five dollars offered by Mr. George R. Meek to that member of the "D" class of the High School attaining the highest average in spelling for the year was awarded to Raymond R. Jenkins.

The book-keeping prize of five dollars offered by Mr. George R. Meek to the member of the "C" class of the High School keeping the neatest set of books in book-keeping during the year has been awarded to Anna Dawson.

The Literary prize of ten dollars offered by Mr. George R. Meek to that member of the High School writing the best news article on some subject pertaining to events happening in Centre County has been divided between Marjorie McGinley and Mary Showers.

The Daughters of the Revolution prize of five dollars each to the boy and girl of the Senior Grammer grade who shall excel in the writing of an essay on some topic pertaining to the American Revolution has been awarded to Clair Robb and Elsie Altenderfer.

The local chapter of D. A. R. has formally notified me that they desire to withdraw the prizes offered in the Senior Grammar grade and transfer them to the High School.

SCHOLARSHIP.

The scholarship of the pupils in general is pleasing to those who were appointed to guide their educational life during the past term. The following pupils have attained the highest averages in their respective classes.

HIGH SCHOOL.

The work of the High School speaks for itself and the advance made in this department of our schools during the past years is the source of much satisfaction to the patrons of the public schools. Those who have gone out into life from our High School have acquitted themselves well in their various undertakings and those who have gone to college have generally stood the test of scholarship. Our graduates are received without examination into the leading colleges of our state.

COMMENCEMENT.

The past commencement season was a very pleasant one when fourteen young persons stepped "on the threshold" of life. Beginning with the baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. J. B. Stein on Sunday evening May 28 the exercises were continued on Monday evening when the Junior Declamatory Contest was held. On Tuesday evening the Alumni gave the annual reception to the graduating class and on Wednesday afternoon the commencement exercises proper were held, while in the evening the commencement address was delivered by the Hon. Henry Houck and Hon. William C. Heinle presented the diplomas and awarded the prizes.

LIBRARY.

It is indeed gratifying to note the well-directed liberality with which you, the members of the Board, view the growing needs of an enlarged library. The High School library now contains 1473 volumes while we have libraries of several hundred volumes in each of the Grammar grades.

THE BUSINESS MEN'S PICNIC

Will be Greater and Larger than Ever Before

TUESDAY AUGUST 20th

Is the Day Set for the Business Men of Centre and Clinton Counties to Meet at Hecla Park

WILL BE A GREAT GAME OF BASE BALL

We hear every where we go people talking and making plans to attend the Great Big Business Men's Picnic at Hecla Park August 20th. This years picnic promises to be larger and more attractive than any other ever held. Farmers are planning their work so as to meet their friends there. Business men in Clinton and Centre counties are going to close up their places of business and meet one another there. The factories in both counties will be closed down so that the men who labor can enjoy the day there. It comes in the time of the year when all the school boys and girls can be there, in fact every one will be there that has a quarter.

The park is right in the midst of its beauty. The grass and flowers are right in their prettiest colors. Oh, we know you will all have such a royal good time and we can hardly wait until the time comes aroond.

Now here are just a few things that are actually going to happen. Free dancing, the music will be furnished by a splendid orchestra, inter-county shooting contest, lawn tennis contest, band concerts, by the famous Repaz and the 12th Regiment Bands of Williamsport, Pa., grand chorus of several thousand voices singing National hymns, a novel and laughable entertainment given by the executive committee, running races, base ball game, between the strong Philipsburg team and the Renova nine. Both teams have been playing remarkable ball this season, baloon ascensions afternoon and evening from the ball field.

Meals can be had on the grounds. The Central Railroad company are assured of the largest supply of cars ever secured for this occasion. Insuring ample transportation facilities to the thousands who will attend.

Properly deputized officials will see to it that no intoxicated persons will be permitted on trains or picnic grounds. In fact this will be the best, cleanest and greatest picnic ever held at Hecla Park. Are you going?

Passed Away to Rest.

Some weeks ago we attended services at the Methodist Episcopal church and an invitation was extended to any who wished to unite with the church and thus publicly announce to the world that they were the followers of Christ and that they meant to live a good clean life with Him. Just one young lady stood up, all alone she walked to the altar and made the sacred promises according to the rites of the church. She alone on that beautiful Sabbath Day accepted Jesus Christ as her Saviour.

She was ill, and had to be assisted from the church before the services were over. Today she is realizing what those promises mean that she made and doubtless kept some weeks ago.

The young lady we have reference to is Miss Elsie Hendershot. Tuesday morning just at dawn her soul passed away to the home above. She was a victim of that dreadful desease consumption, and she knew that before long she would be at rest.

Miss Hendershot was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hendershot and lived back of the Nittany furnace mansion.

Entertained at Snow Shoe

Mrs. Thomas R. Hayes entertained a number of ladies at Snow Shoe today from all reports they had a most delightful time, among those who were invited and took advantage of the lovely mountain trip were Mrs. Frank Warfield, Mrs. Robert Hayes, Mrs. Archibald Allison (the only lady wearing the white ribbon) Mrs. James R. Hughes, Mrs. Grace Hayes, Miss Farewell, Miss Green, Miss Rhoades, Miss Lyon, and Miss Maxwell. The ladies returned on the evening train.

HURRAH! FOR THE BUSINESS MEN!

They Defeated the Professional Men to the Score of 16—11

One of the most exciting games of base ball played on the Meadow Brook Park this season was on Friday afternoon when the Business Men of Bellefonte slaughtered the Professional Men to the score of 16 to 11. Wasn't it awful?

From the start to finish the Business Men led and when they knew the other side was easy they didn't play quite so hard toward the last.

On the Professional side of the fence perhaps Dale, Garbrick, Wallace and Keller won the laurels, while Meyers, Locke, Hayes, Feidt and Blanchard did some stunts worth favorable mentioning.

Doc Locke certainly did look cute in his brown out-fit, but when he started to run everybody had to look out.

On the Business Men's team Crider and Harris did some funny acrobatic work out in left and right fields that greatly amused the crowd of spectators. Irwin, Otto, Hunter, Cassidy and Curtin, all did splendid work and showed that at one time they might have played ball. At any rate they assisted Krumrine Gephart and the balance of the team to win the game. The Umpire for this wonderful game was George Knisely and his decisions were all given according to the National Base Ball Rules and what he said went, no matter who raised a kick.

The field was in fairly good condition, that is the boys looked more like ball players after the game than they did before.

The Hospital will realize about $62.00 from the game and that is considered a neat sum considering the inclement weather. The next time we feel sure the Professionals will win. The Ladies Auxiliary wish to thank everyone who assisted in raising this money.

The line up was as follows:

Business		Professionals.
Irwin	catcher	Wallace
Curtin / Otto	pitcher	Dale
Krumrine	1st. B.	Locke
McGinley / Gephart	2nd B.	Feidt
Hunter	3rd. B.	Garbrich
Otto / Curtin	S. stop	Blanchard
Cassidy	R. field	Hayes
Harris	C. field	Meyers
Crider	L. field	Keller

CHALLENGE.

Dr. Feidt of the Professionals challenge the Business Men again, but they must do away with Curtin, Otto Gephart and Irwin.

Roy Gentzel Badly hurt.

On Saturday afternoon Roy and Homer Gentzel of State College, sons of Perry Gentzel of near Zion, were on their way home in an automobile when they met with a serious accident.

They left the College about three-thirty and were coming down the pike at a moderate rate when one of the axles on the car broke, Homer stuck to the machine but Roy jumped, and as he did so, the heavy car passed over him and fractured his right leg in several places, broke his nose, cut half his ear off and badly bruised his body all over. He was taken back to the College and brought to Bellefonte on the Bellefonte Central and taken to the hospital. Dr. Robinson of State College who attended to the injuries temporarily at the College accompanied the young man to Bellefonte where he assisted other physicians in dressing and setting the broken bones.

Roy Gentzel is a young man about 21 years of age and he displayed wonderful nerve all through this painful ordeal He is a clerk in the State College Bank and has many friends all over the county who wish him a speedy recovery.

This young man getting hurt and taken to our hospital makes the fourth one in the Gentzel connection who have been treated in the Bellefonte Hospital within the last six months. First Mrs. Perry Gentzel the young man's mother received an operation, second his uncle, Mr. Ben Gentzel was taken there with a badly fractured leg, third his cousin Miss Clara Cole was operated on for appendicitis, and now this young man. We sincerely hope the balance of the connection will be more fortunate and will not need to pass through this kind of pain and suffering

Old Home Week.

"Old Home Week" is being talked of by the citizens of Centre Hall, and later the Reporter hopes to announce that a time for the home-coming of its boys and girls—old and young—has been set for some time in the summer of 1908. What a grand, old time there will be if Centre Hall makes up its mind to observe "Old Home Week!"

CENTRE COUNTY BRIDGE

Some Interesting Facts About the Hubbard Bridge

BRIDGE WEIGHS 45 TONS

That Spans Beech Creek and was Built at the Expense of Clinton and Centre Counties.

MILLER OF BELLEFONTE CONTRACTOR

The bridge across the Beech Creek at Hubbards', about two miles above Lock Haven, is completed as far as the work of the contractors is concerned, but it is necessary for Beech Creek and Liberty townships to do some additional filling on the approaches before it can be used. It is expected that this work will be done in a day or two. This bridge has been built after a delay of four years, when the old wooden structure was swept away by an ice flood. Since that time it was necessary to ford the creek, which, at this point, is dangerous and in the winter it was exceedingly hard on horses. The new bridge was built by the Owego Bridge company of Owego, N. Y., who had the contract for both steel and abutments. The contract price is $6,485, which includes abutments. The latter were sub-let to Contractor Miller of Bellefonte. The cost of the bridge complete is to be paid half by Clinton and half by Centre county. The abutting townships, Beech Creek and Liberty, make the approaches. The bridge is of a single span 123 feet long, known as a high truss riveted bridge, the material all steel. The bottom is 12 feet above low water, the top 32 feet above low water. The bridge weighs 45 tons. The roadway is 14 feet wide, covered with three-inch oak plank. The bridge was painted after erected. Milton H. Plants of Montour Falls, N. Y., superintended the erection of the bridge, assisted by E. H. Nelle of Salamanca, N. Y., as foreman, ten men being employed on the job. Mr. Plants set up this long span with its heavy weight on seven-inch bars would poles.

Mr. Plants has been in the bridge business for 17 years and is an experienced man in this line. This was very evident to those who saw the work progress.

The commissioners of the two counties will meet in a few days and arrange for an inspection of the bridge and after a careful inspection by each board it will undoubtedly be accepted. The bridge is located in a spot where it shows off to good advantage and where the scenery is natural and very beautiful.

Death of Mrs. Kilpatrick's Father.

The sad intelligence reached Bellefonte Friday morning that Mr. Frank B. Clayton father of Mrs. J. W. Kilpatrick wife of Dr. Kilpatrick died in Baltimore Md. on Wednesday.

Mr. Clayton had been to a little summer resort near Baltimore and while in bathing met with a serious accident he was picked up by a boat running in to the city and taken to the Johns Hopkins hospital. His daughter Mrs. Kilpatric and her sisters who were visiting her left immediately for their fathers bedside.

Mr Clayton visited in Bellefonte only a short time ago and formed the acquaintance of many people who will feel sorry to hear of his untimely death. He was a gentleman about 50 years of age. A member of the F. A. M. in high standing. The funeral occurred Fridry afternoon at 2:30

Eighty-Eight Years Old.

On Tuesday Thomas Waddle of Jersey Shore, celebrated the eighty-eighth anniversary of his birth. Mr. Waddle has the distinction of being the oldest citizen in Jersey Shore, having gone to that place January 9th 1849, fifty-eight years ago. He was born at Rock Iron, Centre county, August 13th, 1819. He was elected treasurer of Lycoming county on the Republican ticket in 1859. Mr. Waddle is still in vigorous health.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Seely gave a party for Mr. Waddle, at their cabin at Nippono on his birthday. Mr. Waddle is well and favorably known in Bellefonte.

STATE COLLEGE,

School of Agriculture and Experiment Station—Special Work.

In order to meet the needs of many young men who, wish to devote more time to the study of agricultural subjects than that given in the short winter courses and yet who cannot, for various reasons, give the four years of study required for a full course in agriculture the trustees, upon the recommendation of the school of agriculture have provided that persons eighteen years of age or over may with the consent of the dean, be allowed, without examination, to enter the school and pursue such technical subjects of the four year courses in agriculture as the heads of departments may find them able to enter with profit to themselves.

In order that students may know what courses can be taken without conflict of hours, two years of special work have been scheduled.

This course begins September 19, 1907. Every student deposits five dollars at the beginning of each year as security against damages. An incidental fee of thirty-five dollars a year is charged to all students, payable in two installments, one at the beginning of each semester. Board and room may be obtained of the college, or in private families at prices varying from $3.50 to $5.00 per week. Certain subjects require laboratory fees which vary from $2.00 to $5.00 per session. For special information concerning this course, address Alva Agee, Professor of Agricultural Extension, State College, Pa.

For general information concerning the School of Agriculture and Experiment Station or the Pennsylvania State College, address Thomas F. Hunt, Dean and Director, State College, Pa.

The Mason's Camp.

Quite a jolly party of Masons spent the weeks end at the Masons camp, seventeen in all, partaking of "Wallys famous chicken and waffle dinner on Sunday, and the way Keller, Knisely, Blair, Ward and Feidt made those waffles fly was a caution, all track of count being lost early in the game. The greatest feature though, was when the ton of Masonry all fell in the water together a swimming making the Bald Eagle raise over two feet and sending forth a wave that nearly washed the bank away. The heavy weights consisted of Jno. Knisely, Keller, Feidt, Bush, Geo. Knisely, Grim, Ward and Blair, no wonder the water rose.

During the week day evenings 500 is prevailing amusement but Blair says he would rather play "mumbly-peg" since the 5 to 0 set the other night.

"Wallys" pies certainly are fine and McDowell does like pie so he even eats it before breakfast and at intervals all day long. All are of the opinion that the camp is situated at one of the finest spots in Central Pennsylvania, high enough above the water to avoid mosquitoes and frogs and yet close to it. The Masons are certainly lucky to have such a nice camp which could not be replaced for less than $1500 today.

The bathing is certainly fine, the water warm with a sloping sandy bottom. The motor boat is in running order again but like the Irishman's mule you don't know what minute she is going to back and then there is the paddle back.

The camp is open for the Masons until the 19th so there will probably be a big weeks end next Saturday and Sunday.

Knisely, Bush and Grim have all quite a tan on you will soon think they were at the Atlantic.

"Dewey" Meyer was afraid of the water so he staid out, but he says he is not afraid of waffles. He says they stay in.

Dr. Ward is quite a pedestian he walked down and back both in the early morning.

Another chicken and waffle dinner next Sunday evening that will draw our regulars down.

Came Near Being Killed.

On Saturday evening a fellow from down near Roland came near being ground to pieces in front of the P. R. R. station. He had come to town early in the day and was pretty well boozed. He reached the station just as the Lewisburg was pulling down to the engine house and the Snow Shoe was coming in. He started staggering up the tracks to get on the train going and was about two feet from the Snow Shoe train when Paul Jones nabbed him by the coat collar and pulled him from the track. Martin Reese had thrown on all the brakes but the train was coming in pretty fast and couldn't have been stopped. It certainly did make the chills run up and down your back. The fellow really did not realize how close he was to being killed.

DELAMATER A SUICIDE

Was a Candidate For Governor in 1890.

EX-STATE SENATOR

Defeated Gen. Hastings for the Nomination But was in Turn Defeated by Pattison at The Polls.

GRIEF GIVEN AS THE CAUSE

Pittsburg, August 7.—George Wallace Delamater, once candidate for governor of Pennsylvania, and who served as state senator from Crawford county from 1887 to 1890, committeed suicide by shooting Wednesday in his offices in this city. Occupants of neighboring offices in the Diamond National bank builing found him dead with a 39-calibre bullet hole in his right temple.

Grief over the death of his father, George B, Delamater, at Meadville, Pa., on May 6, and the sudden death of his son, James Scott Delamater, in June, at Connellsville, Pa., is believed to be the cause of this suicide. Members of the family say that Delamater had become morbid with grief of late and that he had frequently expressed his sorrow.

Shirley P. Austin, a son-in-law, who took charge of the body, declared that the dead man's affairs were in no way involved and that he had nothing to worry about.

Delamater was connected with the Prudential Life Insurance company in this city, and leaves a comfortable fortune to his family, being heavily insured.

Mr. Delamater was born March 31, 1849, in Meadville, Pa. His education was received in the schools of that place, at Allegheny college, and at the Harvard Law school. Throughout the period of his schooling he acquitted himself with great credit, winning honors.

He practiced law three years and then engaged in business, banking principally the firm being Delamater & Co. His interests were diversified and generally successful. In 1876 he became mayor of Meadville and in 1880 he was a republican presidential elector for Pennsylvania. In 1886 he was elected to the state senate. Forging rapidly to the front in the party councils, he was, in 1890, nominated for governor, but was defeated. The democratic candidate was Robert E. Pattison and the campaign was one of the most bitterly fought in Pennsylvania for many years. Pattison won after a desperate battle, but only because Allegheny county turned against Delamater.

Former State Senator Christopher Magee led the local forces against Delamater and because of this spit in the party the democrats were enabled to win out. This was the closing of Senator Delamater's career as a political leader, as he was embittered, it is said, by the lack of support given him by members of his party and the factional fight which resulted in his defeat.

It was senator Quay himself who forced Mr. Delamater's nomination by the republican party. Besides the revolt against him by the local wing of the party led by Mr. Magee, Senator Delamater was also hurt during his campaign by sympathetic revolts in other parts of the state.

After his unsucessful candidacy his bank at Meadville, Pa., failed. This was caused directly, it was said by a leading republican leader today, by losses resulting from his expenditures in the guberatorial campaign. Other losses were sustained through a railroad enterprise and these are said to have been a good sized fortune.

Broken by this succession of defeats and losses, Senator Delamater then moved with his family to Seattle Wash. He engaged in business there and did fairly well. He remained there for ten years and after having recouped at least a part of his losses, came back to Pittsburg.

Mr. Delamater was a prominent member of the Calvary Protestant Episcopal church and was president of the church club.

The Skating Rink

The skating rink will open September 2nd. and the management announces that this season will be a great deal better than last. As the floor in the armory has had a complete over hauling and all the skates put in magnificent shape. What a delightful time every one had up until the place closed and the same spirit seems to reign in the hearts of the young folks. Don't forget the 2nd of September is Labor Day and will be observed as a holliday by a great many, and the armory is likely to be crowded. Look foreward to the time.

Old Farmer Jones Says.

I come down town yesterday for the first time for about two weeks and every body wanted to know where I had been for so long, but I had to be honest and tell them, I was refined to my home with rumatiz. Well I just tell you it was the worst gal darn thing that ever took me for a long time. I blamed it on husking corn but Sarah said it came from sitting on the stones at the monument the last time I was in town. Well sir its the gol blasted thing I ever had. I just felt as if I had the sabbin and just felt as if I was standing at a public sale and every fellow that would pass me would run a pegging awe into me. I just could not endure it I felt like committin southin-syrup Sarah had all the old women in the country prescribing some remedy why one said If I would wade in cold water I would get well, but I felt like Rip Van winkle and say do you know Sarah has it now but she got her rumatiz standing down at Browns corner for the last two weeks from eight to ten hearin them Black fellows talkin funny things and makin soap suds and do you know she has it so bad I was afraid it would effect her speech, but that is a fatal point for women. I just felt as if she got all that was coming to her standing so much after night in the open air with the baby in her arms but I'll be Joe squashed she won't say now that I was a playin off when my joints swelled up like watermelons.

I would not of come to town today but wanted to see the game of Bass Ball between the Doctors and professionals I did not care for the doctors only I thought sure there would be some women Doctors play then I knew there would be fun but do you know I was anxious to know who the professionals were and such a game Ned Blanchard would not of got on the race track at all if one of the boys had not met with an accident say nothing about the rest.

things have been going all right on the farm for a few weeks taters growin to beat the Band only there is about as many tater Bugs as there are Pictures of "Huston" in the North American!

well I must be gettin home with this medicine sarah sent me after some soda she heard that was good for Rumatiz but I got a Pound of Costic soda and it dont agree with her a tarnal bit.

They are Standing Around.

Away early in the spring we made mention of so many men and middle aged men standing around loafing their time away. Looking to see whether someone will ask them to have a drink. We know some have wives and families and in order to give the children a living the mother is compelled to take in washing and work hard all day, while this lazy, loafers, good for nothing husband of here, lays around drunk. For shame.

If you cannot find work in Bellefonte go away. Go to Altoona, Johnstown or Pittsburg, at any of these places you can get any amount of work at good wages. It would be better to do most any thing than idle away your time in drunkenness and debauchery.

Fishermen Going Camping.

On Tuesday of next week Clarence Rine, Davy Barlett, Harold Kirk and Calvin Faust of Altoona are going down to Butler's Island below Howard and will remain there ten days fishing for bass. It is certainly a splendid way to spend your vacation and we hope the fellows will have a good catch and a splendid time.

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry-bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, hang-on, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering hang-on coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the peroxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach), it is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity."

"Golden Medical Discovery" enriches and purifies the blood curing blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings and old sores, or ulcers.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet telling all about the native medicinal roots composing this wonderful medicine. There is no alcohol in it.

5th REGT. RIFLE TEAM

Frank Smith of Bellefonte has Been Chosen

SHOOTING AT ANT HILL

High Gun Men will Contest at Mt. Gretna Range—From there they will go to Sea Girt, N. J.

ALL REGIMENTS IN UNITED STATES

After several days of rifle practice of the Fifth regiment, National Guard team, a team that will contest at Mt. Gretna has been chosen by Captain Reed, of Blairsville. The rifle practice was held at Ant Hill during this week and to day remains to conclude the practice. Following is the score of the team that has been practicing.

Corporal Lightner, of Co. C, total 5 47, average 27 7-20: Sergeant Ebersole, of Co. C. total 581, average 26 18 22; Artificer Starry, of Co. D, total 567, average, 21 15-24; Major See, of the staff of regiment; total 394, average 24 14-16; Private Smith, of Co. B, total 385, average 21.

Captain Reed has chosen Corporal Lightner, Sergeant Ebersole, Artificer Starry and Major See to compose the team which will leave the city tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock and will be taken to Mt. Gretna, where they will take part in the shoot. Today they will conclude the rifle practice. This morning they will shoot at a range of 200, 500, 600, 800 and 1,000 yards, and this afternoon the practice at rapid fire and at skirmish.

At Mt. Gretna they will compete among twenty teams, 13 regiment teams six troop teams, and one from the naval reserves. The shoot at Mt. Gretna will last a week and during that time a team of twelve of the best marksmen will be picked out of the twenty teams and will be taken to Sea Girt, N. J., where the championship of all the regiments of the United States will be decided upon.

The Famous Repaz.

The famous Repaz Band of Williamsport has been secured at a high figure to play at the Business Mens picnic on August 20th. This will be a rare treat as this band is considered the best musical organization in the state. They will give several concerts during the day and we feel sure everyone who carves for music at all will enjoy hearing them.

A Merry Party at the Mason's Camp.

Quite a merry heavy weight party of Masons are enjoying themselves at the Mason's camp along the Bald Eagle, above Curtin Station, and when Flair, Bush, Knisely and Grimm all tumble in swimming together, there is quite a perceptable rise in the waters. The camp is certainly situated in a beautiful spot, one of the the prettiest in Central Penna with every natural advantage of good air, spring water, good drainage and fine boating, swimming and fishing and last but not least the beautiful scenery, with the foreground of the limpid water and the waving fields interspersed with trees and in the distance the green Bald Eagle range.

They are a merry party and with the good cooking of "Wally" and the facinations of the fine little motor boat and "five hundred" in the evenings, all manage to get browner and wax fatter and jollier. The camp is open to the lodge members until the 19th with special dinners on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays at 6 p. m.

Neely—Samuelson.

On Wednesday evening at the residence, of Mrs. Catherine Kline at 130 W. Curtin St. A happy couple were united in holy matrimony. The contracting parties were Chas. W. Neely and Miss Anna M. Samuelson both Evangelistic workers and of Pittsburg Pa. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few guests, by Rev. Fred W. Barry Pastor of the Evangelistic Lutheran church of this city.

The bride was dressed in a plain white gown, while the groom was dressed in a suit of steel gray.

The bride and groom, a few minutes after having been married attended the prayer meeting at the church in which Rev. Barry is Pastor.

Mr. Neely, for the present is employed as Inspector for the Hammor Coupler Co. of Pittsburg Pa but intends, should the Lord so lead to re-enter school this fall to prepare for the great work for which they feel called to do.—Missionaries to the foreign field.

Took It Literally.

It is told of the late Chauncey Shafer, who bears the same relation to New York's "anecdotage" that Sydney Smith does to London's, that he employed in his law office a stunted youth of very tractable temperament.

One day Mr. Shafer returned from lunch in a lively mood and, by token of the madeira he had consumed, summoned Billy into his private office.

"Boy," he said carelessly, "go over to the special term and see what in —— they're doing up there."

The late Judge Brady was presiding over the trial of an action involving many interesting questions of substantive law; hence the courtroom was empty save for the litigants, their counsel and the necessary witnesses. Judge Brady's kindliness toward women and children was proverbial, and when Billy stood against the railing of the inclosure, his face barely reaching the balustrade, the judge noticed him immediately. He interrupted the arguments of counsel and turned to Billy.

"Well, my lad," he said in suave, judicial accents, "what can I do for you?"

"I'm from Mr. Shafer's office," Billy replied, "and he wants to know what in —— you're up to over here."—Success Magazine.

From Out the Grave.

In the little village of Tewin, Hertfordshire, England, there are five large trees growing out of a single grave, and thereby hangs a curious story. On the slab that marks the grave was carved the inscription:

"Here lyeth interr'd the body of the Right Honorable Lady Anne Grimestone, wife of Sir Samuel Grimestone, Bart., of Gohambury, in Hertfordshire, daughter of the late Right Honorable the Earl of Thanet, who departed this life Nov. 22, 1713, in the sixtieth year of her age."

The village story says that Lady Grimestone, persisting in a lifelong denial of the existence of a God, on her deathbed declared in answer to the exhortations of her friends that if in the other world she found that there was indeed a God five trees would grow out of her grave. The woman died and was buried. Shortly after the interment the five little shoots began to appear, growing constantly until they split the masonry and wrecked the railing about the tomb.—New York Tribune.

Animal Peculiarities.

A herd of wild Asian buffaloes will charge any foe, even a tiger, to save the life of one of their number that has been wounded. Elephants, baboons and other animals will do the same thing in a wild state.

On the other hand, monkeys have been known to fall upon one of their number that is ill and drown him, possibly as an act of mercy. Similarly wolves destroy one of the pack that becomes helpless.

If an otter is trapped, his brother otters will run around him all night, showing the utmost concern.

A writer in the London Spectator states that he has seen sparrows in groups discussing and lamenting when one of their number had fallen into a trap. Next day, when a robin was caught, the sparrows paid no attention. He adds that he had seen a big pig try to help a smaller one through a hole in the fence paling by pulling at its head.

Chinese Music.

The Chinese have eight instruments for making their ritual music—the bell, the flute, the drum, the sonorous stone, the fife, the plume, the shield and the ax. The last three make no music, but are used as decoration or emblem in the musical ceremonies and are enumerated as musical instruments. In every ceremony there are always two instruments of each kind, sometimes as many as four or six, never an odd number, in order to emphasize the duality of the Chinese people. For instance, one drum announces the beginning of the music, and its mate strikes the last note; one bell calls, and its counterpart answers.

Absentminded.

She was an exceedingly dainty little woman, who was taking a very great interest in the welfare of the convicts when she was being shown through the penitentiary the other day. Guard O'Brien was along when she happened to speak to one of the prisoners. "I am so sorry for you," she remarked in a tender tone of voice. "Of course you will be very thankful when the time comes for you to leave this dreadful place."

"No," retorted the man. "I'd a sight rather stop here where I am." The little woman almost collapsed.

"Isn't it strange?" she asked, turning to the guard. "I had no idea the prisoners were so contented. What was the poor fellow's offense?"

The guard concealed a covert grin. "He was just a little absentminded, that was all," followed the grin.

"Absentminded!" exclaimed his astonished interrogator.

"Yes, madam," politely replied O'Brien. "He persisted in forgetting he was married, and now when his time is up he has five wives awaiting him on the outside."

The woman could not deny that the convict had sufficient reasons to be contented with his present lot.—Columbus Dispatch.

Why He Felt Happy.

"Vernon told me this morning," related the lady with the cold blue eye, "that he passed the tree where two years ago he carved your initials and his own and encircled them with a heart. He says he felt so glad he almost danced for joy!"

"Ah," said the tall brunette anxiously, "then he must still love me, after all! Did he tell you why he felt so happy?"

"Yes, dear. He said some men were cutting the tree down!"

Study of Man.

The only school for the study of human nature is the world. The only text books are the works of men like Shakespeare, Hugo, Cervantes, Sterne and other students who learned in that school. But the effectual study of human nature demands from the student a vast fund of love and sympathy. You will never get admitted into the heart of a fellow creature unless you go as a friend.—Robert Blatchford in Clarion.

Maurey Family Reunion At Hecla Park On Friday.

The annual reunion and picnic of the Maurey family was held at Hecla park on Friday and was attended by upwards of 300 persons. The assemblage was composed of the Maurey families, their decendents and invited friends.

As the day was an ideal one for an outing those present secured all the enjoyment possible from the beginning to the ending of the reunion. The morning exercises included music by a quartet, prayer by Rev. M. B. Bubb of Selona and addresses by H. S. Mitchell, Esq. of Flemington, A. M. Reigle of Selona and Rev M. B. Bubb, pastor of the Methodist church.

At the noon hour an elegant dinner was served which comprising all the good things the market affords. In the afternoon ex-Senator W. C. Heinle of Bellefonte made an entertaining address in which he dwelt upon the pleasure and profit of family reunions and keeping alive the family ties engendered about the hearthstone during childhood days. His remarks were punctured with amusing stories and flashes of wit, pathos and sentiment.

The Maurey family came to Clearfield and Centre counties about 1820 and are among the oldest, most thrifty and respected people of this section. Seven counties were represented in Friday's reunion.

After the Storm.

By... LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

Brooks raised the shade and looked out, saying things softly to himself. A sodden landscape merged into leaden skies, and a fine, driving rain veiled but slightly the misery of the scene.

Across the road a score of ducks waddled contentedly through the muddy field to a puddle that had formed in a corner of the lot, but half a dozen bedraggled hens squawked dolefully as they picked up the angleworms driven to the surface by the continued rain and rushed back to shelter. The cows in the side pasture huddled under the dripping trees, and the dog trotted across the road with his tail dragging almost in the mud as he made for the protection of the barn after being driven from the inviting kitchen door.

Brooks had come to Centerville for a purpose—a purpose that was not best served by confinement in a country boarding house for seven days and nights. Once or twice there had come a break in the steady rain, but in an hour or so it only came down the harder, as though to make up for the time it had lost.

He had wanted to take Bess over to the Big rock, where they had first met the summer before, and there make the avowal of love that had hung trembling upon his lips ever since. He had been able to take a whole month the year before—four golden weeks filled with sunshine and love.

Then Bess had gone to Europe as companion to a rich relative, and just as she returned Curtis Brooks had been called to South America on a matter of great importance. They had corresponded with such regularity as their uncertainty of movement permitted, but there had been no opportunity for a proposal, and now their waking time was divided between the parlor and the dining room of the old farmhouse.

Seven days of rain had got on Brooks' nerves. With his whole energy bent upon taking back to town Bess' promise, the dreary round of parlor life irritated him.

IN A MOMENT HE WAS ON HIS KNEES BESIDE HER.

Dickie Langdon, who had been the life of the stormbound party, had rechristened Willow farm the Ark, with an allusion to the animals that went two by two. The landlord was Noah, the colored servants Ham and his wife, and, with a sudden switch to "Pinafore," Langdon has insisted that Brooks was Dick Deadeye because of his disposition, and Brooks had not belied his nickname. It was not easy even for a patient man to sit quietly and see the hoped for opportunity pass, and Curtis Brooks was not a patient man.

All through those last weeks in Columbia he could shut his eyes and see the Big rock with Bess and himself standing beside it just as they had done the summer before. Now that he was here he could not even see it from the windows because of the curtain of mist and rain. Tomorrow he would have to return to town, and then there was another long trip to Caregena.

The frown was still on Brooks' face when he went down to breakfast. Langdon's jollity irritated him, and when they went back to the parlor after the meal he was gloomy and dispirited. Even Bess could not win him out of himself, and finally he went to his room to write some letters, he announced.

Writing consisted in sitting before a table with pen and ink and paper near at hand and staring at the drenched landscape before him. Even the ducks had sought cover, for now the rain was coming down in sheets. He could scarcely see across the yard, and, with a groan at the lost vacation, he let his head sink forward upon his arm.

A light knock at the door had to be twice repeated before he heard it. Bess stood in the hall, smiling as though there was no such thing as rain.

"Don't you want to go up and have a look at the Big rock this afternoon?" she asked. "I think it's going to stop raining at last. Anyway, I can wrap up well. It would be a shame not to see the old place before you go back."

"Bess, you're an angel," was all he could say. She laughed at the remark.

"It would be more seasonable to call me a duck," she reminded. "I'll be ready at 4 o'clock."

She darted away, and Brooks, with a new hope in his heart, caught up a pen and wrote the letters that he had been trying to compose all the week.

Bess was prompt, and at 4 o'clock they met on the piazza. The rain had gone back to a light drizzle, but Langdon affected to take a last farewell of them and promised to try and recover their bodies after the flood.

Bess gave him a saucy reply, and they started down the road. It was a hard climb up the steep side of the mountain at the foot of which Centerville nestled, but after the stuffy atmosphere of the house the wet earth filled the clean air with a fragrance peculiarly its own.

Bess drank deep drafts down into her lungs. "I'm glad that we came," she declared. "It isn't so very wet, and I did want to have you see Big rock again."

"I was afraid that it would be washed away before we could get up here," he said, with a smile. "This has been a nightmare week, Bess. What can you think of the way I've been acting?"

"I don't blame you," she said softly. "It must be horrid to have your only week spoiled. But there is Big rock," she added as they came in view of a huge bowlder, relic of some glacial period.

In clear weather they could see far down the valley from the ledge on which the rock stood. Even now they were given a glimpse of green fields and the darker tint of the wooded sections, though the silver thread of the river had become a leaden reflection of the cloudy skies.

Brooks leaned against the rock, while Bess seated herself upon a smaller stone. For a moment neither spoke; then Brooks turned to her.

"It was my one wish to come up here," he said. "Do you remember last summer meeting me here?"

"As though it were yesterday," she answered. "I had been day dreaming in the shade of the rock, and you came crashing through the bushes. I was a little frightened, I remember."

"I wanted to come back here," he said reflectively. "I had a foolish notion that I should be more fortunate if I spoke in the shadow of the Big rock. I wanted to ask you to marry me, Bess, but I don't suppose you would dare marry a chap who had shown such a temper as I have in the past few days."

"Why don't you ask and find out?" she suggested demurely.

In a moment he was upon his knees beside her. He had given up all hope as the long wet days wore upon his patience. He had not supposed that she would trust her future to him. Now that she had spoken he poured out his love in a torrent of speech, oblivious to all else. For a quarter of an hour he gave heed to nothing save the sweet face before him, looked at nothing save the tender eyes, now so full of love. Then she gently disengaged herself and pointed across the valley.

Far in the west the sun was showing through a rift in the clouds, lighting with prismatic splendor the arch of a rainbow. "Life is like that, dear," she said gently. "There must be some stormy days that we may better appreciate the sun."

"And you are not afraid—even of my temper?"

"Of course not, you foolish boy."

"Bess," he said impetuously, "I'm going to try and have very few storms. I know how hideously unpleasant they are. All this week I've been growing more and more certain that you would never have me, and all the time you were looking for the rainbow."

"Love is the pot of gold that is buried at the foot of that sort of a rainbow," she said, with a smile.

"And, unlike the others, we have found the gold," he exulted.

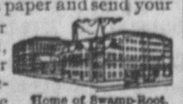
DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.



Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and the address, Binghamton, N. Y. on every bottle.

The Scrap Book

The Ways of Congressmen.

It was at a banquet in Washington given to a large body of congressmen, mostly from the rural districts. The tables were elegant, and it was a scene of fairy splendor, so to speak; but on one table there were no decorations but palm leaves.

"Here," said a congressman to the head waiter, "why don't you put them things on our tables, too?" pointing to the plants.

The head waiter didn't know he was a congressman.

"We cain't do it, boss," he whispered confidentially; 'dey's mostly congressmen at all de tables 'ceptin' dat one, an if we put pa'ms on dere tables dey take um for celery an' eat um all up sho. 'Deed dey would, boss. We knows 'em."

MORTALITY.

Ashes to ashes, dust to dust!
What of his loving? What of his lust?
What of his passion? What of his pain?
What of his poverty? What of his pride?
Earth, the great mother, has called him again.
Deeply he sleeps, the world's verdict defied.
Shall he be tried again? Shall he go free?
Who shall the court convene? Where shall it be?
No answer on the land, none from the sea!
Only we know that as he died we must—
You with your theory, you with your trust.
Ashes to ashes, dust unto dust!

—Paul Laurence Dunbar.

College Days.

There was once a Yale sophomore who found himself in financial straits and pawned all his good clothes. A little before Thanksgiving he got a big check from home.

When he got home for the holidays the first thing his mother took out of the trunk was an overcoat, and on it was pinned the pawnbroker's ticket he had forgotten to remove.

Hastily grabbing the ticket, he said: "Hello! They must have forgotten to take this off at the Smith dance when I left it in the cloakroom."

A moment later his mother took out his evening trousers. They also had a ticket on them.

"Why, Reginald," she said, "surely you didn't leave these in the cloakroom, too, did you?"—Lippincott's.

After Many Trials.

He was a sad faced American tourist, and as he seated himself in a London restaurant he was immediately attended by an obsequious waiter.

"I want two eggs," said the American, "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"'Ow is that, sir?' asked the astounded waiter.

"Two eggs, one fried on one side and one on the other."

"Very well, sir."

The waiter was gone several minutes, and when he returned his face was a study.

"Would you please repeat your horder, sir?"

"I said very distinctly, two eggs, one fried on one side and one on the other."

Oppressive silence, and then a dazed "Very well, sir."

This time he was gone longer, and when he returned he said anxiously:

"Would it be awsking too much, sir, to 'ave you repeat your horder, sir? I cawn't think I 'ave it right, sir, y' know."

"Two eggs," said the American sadly and patiently, "one fried on one side and one on the other."

More oppressive silence and another and fainter "Very well, sir."

This time he was gone still longer. When he returned his collar was unbuttoned, his hair disheveled and his face scratched and bleeding. Leaning over the waiting patron, he asked beseechingly:

"Would you mind tyking boiled heggs, sir? I've 'ad some words with the cook."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Kissing the Girls.

Senator Vance once stumped North Carolina in joint debate with Judge Settle, the Republican candidate for the governorship. All the white Democrats turned out to hear Vance, and the colored Republicans to hear Settle. At the conclusion of the speaking one day, Vance was told that a number of young women had expressed a desire to kiss the Democratic candidate.

He stepped down from the platform and kissed a dozen or so of the pretty young women, when he stopped long enough to turn around to his competitor and shout, "I'm kissing my girls, Settle; now you kiss yours."

"Anno Domino."

When Senator Vest was old and broken in health he once compared his state to that of a very old negro he remembered back in Kentucky.

"See here, Sam," asked the negro's friend, "what's the matter with you?"

"Don't know, boss," said the old darky, "but I think dat I am a-sufferin' wif anno domino."

The Indispensable Man.

When old Zach Taylor came into the presidency, persons in Washington soon began to tell him there was one public servant the government couldn't do without. They said they had come to express the hope that the old general and rather unexperienced president would permit them to inform him of it. This piece of information and advice was systematically dropped into his ear at frequent intervals. At first he paid little attention to it, but finally took note of the fact that a certain John Hobby, who for twenty odd years had held the important office of assistant postmaster general, was the official the government couldn't get along without. The communications became so frequent that one day as the last man disappeared old Zach broke out with this question:

"Captain Harry, who in the devil is this man Hobby everybody is saying we can't get along without?"

The general was informed about the official.

"We must attend to the case at once. We are liable to be in trouble about him any day. We must be prepared. He is liable to die on our hands, and then the devil will be to pay! Seems to me the man who can't be spared is the one to turn out while the government is in a condition to meet the emergency. Turn Hobby out, Captain Harry, and don't wait! We'll see whether or not he can't be spared. Attend to the business at once, captain!"

Nature Study.

With a heart attuned to "nature study," a little Hungarian girl in the Canadian northwest exclaimed, "Yah, teacher; it's certain beautiful on our prairie, where the birds and the small sheep run about raw." It is this girl's brother who states, "Plumage is the foliage of a parrot or hen."—Century.

The Humorous Governor.

When Wolcott was governor of Massachusetts his youngest son, Oliver, was in one of the primary classes of a school. The teacher was one day asking questions of her little pupils, to give them a chance to show what they knew about one thing and another, for the entertainment of a lady who was visiting the school, and she finally inquired:

"Can any one tell me who is the governor of Massachusetts?"

No one could tell, not even little Oliver.

The teacher then told every one of the pupils when he got home to ask his father, so as to be ready to tell her the next day. Accordingly when the class assembled the following morning she gave out the question, calling on Oliver to see what he might have to say about it. Oliver answered:

"Pa says he's the governor. But I don't believe it, 'cause he's always making fun of everythin'."

He Won the Pie.

When Barham, the author of "The Ingoldsby Legends," was a boy at Canterbury, he, in company with a juvenile companion, entered a Quakers' meeting house, and, looking around at the grave assemblage, held up a penny tart and said solemnly, "Whoever speaks first shall have this pie." "Go thy way," said a drab colored gentleman, rising, "go thy way and"— "The pie's yours, sir, exclaimed Barham, and, hastily dropping it before the speaker, made his escape.

Not For Him.

A quiet and retiring citizen occupied a seat near the door of a crowded car when a masterful stout woman entered.

Having no newspaper behind which to hide, he was fixed and subjugated by her glittering eye. He rose and offered his place to her. Seating herself—without thanking him—she exclaimed in tones that reached to the farthest end of the car:

"What do you want to stand up there for? Come here and sit on my lap."

"Madam," gasped the man as his face became scarlet, "I beg your pardon, I—I"—

"What do you mean?" shrieked the woman. "You know very well I was speaking to my niece there behind you."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Host Could Not Leave.

At a large evening party one of the guests stood in a corner yawning.

"Are you very much bored, sir?" asked his neighbor.

"Yes, dreadfully," was the answer. "And you?"

"Oh, I am bored to death too."

"How would it do, to clear out together?"

"I am sorry I can't. I am the host."

Stanton's Bone Crusher.

Some officer had disobeyed or failed to comprehend an order.

"I believe I'll sit down," said Secretary Stanton, "and give that man a piece of my mind."

"Do so," said Lincoln; "write him now while you have it on your mind. Make it sharp. Cut him all up."

Stanton did not need a second invitation. It was a bone crusher that he read to the president.

"That's right," said Lincoln; "that's a good one."

"Who can I send it by?" mused the secretary.

"Send it!" replied Lincoln; "send it! Why, don't send it at all. Tear it up. You have freed your mind on the subject, and that is all that is necessary. Tear it up. You never want to send such letters. I never do."

A Brilliant Thought.

Bascom and His Students.

John Bascom, once president of the University of Wisconsin, always had a keen insight into men, and for much of his life college students constituted mankind for him. Once when he was a class officer the names of two men were read by him as absent from morning prayers. One of them, a pietist, stopped at his desk and said:

"Professor, when the chapel bell was ringing I was engaged in prayer and did not hear it."

"You're not excused," responded John, with contempt in his eye and in his voice.

Then, calling back the other man, who was about at the door on his way out of the room, he said to him:

"What's your excuse?"

"I haven't any, sir."

"You're excused.'

He used to have debates in his classroom. At one of them a student, whom Bascom subsequently described as a "floriating fellow," in the heat of his eloquence said, "I wish that I had the ability and the time to exhaust this subject."

"You have the time," said Bascom.—Harper's Weekly.

Smart Boy Wins.

The visitor was examining the class of small boys. He held the chalk in midair.

"What number shall I draw on the board?" he asked of one boy.

The boy replied, "Thirty-two."

The visitor drew the number backward, which made twenty-three.

"Is that right?" asked the visitor.

"Yes, sir; yes, sir," answered the boy in a timid way.

"What number shall I take now?" he asked of another.

The boy answered, "Sixty-two," whereupon the visitor drew the number backward, as before—twenty-six.

"Is that right?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the boy.

A long way back a bright eyed boy held up a wavering hand.

"What number shall I draw for you?" asked the visitor.

The boy called out, "Forty-four!" Then, when the visitor had drawn it, he yelled out, "Now, if you are so blamed smart, twist that around!"—New York Globe.

A Financial Embarrassment.

A lady who had a kindly remembrance for all her domestic servants met an erstwhile washerwoman and stopped to ask her how she fared.

"Oh, mem, it's turrible finanshul distress me an the childer's in!"

"Why, what is it? Are you out of employment?"

"No, mem. Work's in a fair state o' stiddiness and not a cint do I owe, but it's lashins o' trouble I've got!"

"Are you not paid promptly?"

"As promptly as the day cooms round."

"What is your financial distress, then?"

"Well, mem" (in a burst of horror), "what's killin' me is, I earn $6 the week an' pay $8 for me boord, an' God only knows how I do it!"—Short Stories.

So Many?

They went in to dinner together. He was very bashful, and she tried in vain to draw him out. Finally she began to talk books, and he became responsive. "And Hugo," she asked, "do you like his style?"

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I find him intensely interesting. I've read a number of his books."

Then she asked, "Have you read 'Ninety-Three?'"

"No, I've—er—only read three. I didn't know he had written so many."—Lippincott's Magazine.

As Japanese See It.

It is said the Japanese think our grown women most alarmingly overgrown, very shocking in their costume and quite dreadful as regards their teeth and their feet—in a word, outrageous. They consider the kimono preferable to western habiliments because it so completely obliterates the lines of the figure. They teach girls to talk with their lips almost closed, concealing the teeth, and to walk with the feet parallel in tiny steps or even toeing in.—Kansas City Journal.

The Latest Hour.

"What time is it, my lad?" asked a traveler of a small boy who was driving a couple of cows home from the fields."

"Almost 12 o'clock, sir," replied the boy.

"I thought it was more."

"It's never any more here," returned the lad, in surprise. "It just begins at 1 again."—Lustige Blatter.

And the Boy Was Right.

"If one quart of berries cost 7¼ cents, how much would three quarts cost?" asked a Brooklyn teacher in an oral test the other day.

"They would cost you 22 cents," promptly responded a little boy. "We have nothing less than 1 cent in our money, and the man would just make it 22 cents."—New York Press.

Grace—And did you ever propose to a girl in a canoe?

Fred—Yes, and I'll never do it again. The girl jumped at my proposal and upset the boat.—Harper's Weekly.

All the Difference.

"Society dropped the De Lacys because they had a skeleton in their closet, I understand?"

"No—because they didn't keep it there."—Cleveland Leader.

are caused by Indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of Indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart.

Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

PROF. MEYER GIVES REPORT

PARENTS DAY.

Parents' Day was again observed in the schools. These days have much to do with bringing about pleasant relations between parent and teacher. The attendance upon this day was most gratifying. The regular oral work was exemplified and written work and drawing were exemplified and written work and drawing were exhibited about the rooms.

LAST DAY ENTERTAINMENT.

The usual last day entertainment was omitted this year. Your principal is of the opinion that better results in school work are obtained by adhering closely to the regular school work to the end of the term. These entertainments have usually taken a month's preparation and the whole school system was thrown more or less into disorder. The abandonment of these entertainments seems to have met with favor by those who have been close observers of our schools.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

In several of my monthly reports I have called attention to the condition of some of the rooms in the Stone building and the Howard Street building. The arrangement of the seats, the admission of light and the inability to properly ventilate make these rooms almost wholly unfit for school purposes.

TEACHERS' MEETINGS.

Teachers' meetings were held at regular intervals throughout the year. At these meetings questions of vital importance to the schools were discussed, much importance being given to local conditions. The meetings were interesting and helpful and most of the teachers manifested the interest in their work by taking an active part in the discussions. More preparation by some on the parts assigned would have added materially to the benefits to be derived.

WRITING.

For some years the vertical system of writing has been in use in our schools. It appears to me that it might be well at this time to change the system to the slant. This conclusion on my part has been reached only after a careful study of the various systems and after conferring with professional and business men. The vertical system has now been thoroughly tried in our schools and has not entirely met all the requirements demanded there

CONCLUSION

In conclusion I wish to express my appreciation of the helpful co-operation that has characterized all with whom I have come into contact in the administration of the schools. The teachers have been earnest and willing helpers and have been diligent in adding to the progress of our schools. They deserve much credit for the way they have performed their work. And lastly I wish to thank you, the Members of the Board for the encouragement I have always received from you. From you as a Board and as individuals I have received the heartiest co-operation in carrying out the work of the schools.

Respectfully Submitted,
JOHN D. MEYER,
Supervising Principal.

REMAINING AT HOME.

Bellefonte as a Summer Resort has its Attractive Points.

Residents of Bellefonte have of late years become more reconciled to remaining at home to spend the hot months of summer, because they have discovered that they can have as much fun, receive as much benefit and gather as large stock of freckles and sunburn right at home as they could find elsewhere. In fact, Bellefonte is as fine a summer resort as is to be easily found in this country, and only those who are looking for excitement go away from home in the summer.

Any who may feel disposed to fret and worry because they may not feel able to take a long distance vacation trip should read and heed the following sensible suggestions made by the Franklin Evening News: "If some people would spend their vacation money in making their homes more comfortable and then live in their homes and visit by trolley and other conveyances, the interesting and beautiful points around their own town, they would have a better time than they do. There is no bed that rests so much as the one you are in the habit of sleeping in, no place where you are quite so free as in your own home, no locality quite so rich in opportunities for enjoyment as is the home neighborhood. Some people could hire a livery team and explore the whole country around this city for less than they spend on less satisfactory traveling. Stay at home and rest."

Prof. J. S. Hosterman Called to Montrose.

W. M. Melick is in receipt, today of a communication from Prof. John S. Hosterman, now taking a special course at Columbia University, New York City, announcing his election, over thirty-five applicants, to the superintendency of the schools at Montrose, Pa., at a very satisfactory advance in salary. The announcement of Mr. Hosterman's departure meets with universal regret. During the period of his engagement here he has proven himself to be master of his profession in every detail and our schools will sustain a great loss by his retirement.—Philipsburg Journal.

Hospital Notes

Miss Margaret Garner ill of enteric fever is doing nicely.

Winfield Genzel hurt in automobile accident at State College, Saturday, is doing very well and comfortable.

Mr. John Musser of Snow Shoe operated upon last week doing well.

Jesse Aiken left Institution Tuesday and joins his company at Pine Glenn.

Sixteen patients in Hospital at present all rooms crowded, demand for room badly needed.

The stone still arrived Monday, sincerely hope the new building will go up rapidly as it is badly needed.

Changes at the Theatorium.

Mr. Earnest E. Loop who has been managing the Theatorium will leave on Saturday for other fields of usefulness in New York state.

Mr. Loop has been the soloist for the illustrated songs at the Theatorium and has pleased every one who has heard him. He controls a magnificent baratone voice which he uses at will. We feel sorry to lose Mr. Loop from our midst as he has proven himself to be a splendid business man and an excellent singer, and a good all around fellow. We sincerely hope he meets with success in New York.

Entered into Rest.

On Sunday evening at 10 o'clock at the Bellefonte Hospital the spirit life of Mrs. Daniel Mc Gahn passed away.

The young woman gave birth to a little baby a day or two ago and her death was the result. She was a member of the United Brethren church and was an earnest christian young woman. She was 31 years of age and was born at Gilltown near Pleasant Gap. She leaves to mourn her death a loving husband and three children, Freda, Minnie and Odas. The funeral took place on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, interment were made at Sunny Side cemetery.

Clinton County Murder.

Renova, August 12.—Jacob Miller, the Tamarack man, who is responsible for the death in Lock Haven hospital of Hamilton Mayers, as the result of the shooting at Cross Fork on Saturday night, was brought here today by Sheriff Mussina, and taken to Lock Haven on the Buffalo flyer. Miller was handcuffed to John Baines, of Cross Fork, who is one of the principal witnesses in the case and who had been deputized by Sheriff Mussina to assist him.

Miller does not know of the death of his victim and refuses to make any statement regarding the shooting, other than that bad blood had existed between the two men for some time past.

The story that is being put out as being correct is. That Miller and Mayers have "been together" at various times the past few years and in the last encounter the latter gave Miller a terrible beating. They met on Saturday night last back of Sandbach's saloon at Cross Fork and resumed the old quarrel. Miller left for his home at Tamarack in his buggy and was intercepted some distance from the Forks by Mayers, who wanted to finish the "scrap," insisting on Miller getting out of his buggy for that purpose. Miller feared his assailent and drew his revolver, firing at Mayers, the first shot hitting the arm, the second going wide and the third striking Mayers in the stomach, inflicting the wound from which he died Saturday night. Mayers dragged Miller from his buggy and though suffering from the wounds in his arm and stomach succeeded in inserting the man who had given him his death wound to a Justice of the Peace before he succumbed from loss of blood.

Mayers' body will be brought here tonight from the Lock Haven hospital and will be taken to the home of his brother, from whence it will be taken to Tamarack for the interment.

The diseases referred to above and of which report is required to be made by physicians and health authorities are as follows: Actinomycosis, Anthrax, Bubonic Plague, Epidemic Cerebro Spinal Meningitis (Spotted Fever) Chicken-pox, Cholera, Diphtheria (So-called membranous croup, diptheritic croup, putrid sore throat, should be reported as diphtheria), Epidemic Dysentery, Erysipelas, German Measles Glanders, Hydrophobia, Leprosy, Malarial Fever, Measles, Mumps, Pneumonia (true), Puerperal Fever, Relapsing Fever, Small-pox, Scarlet Fever, (So-called scarlatina and scarlet rash should be reported as scarlet fever), Tetanus, Trachoma, Trichiniasis, Tuberculosis (specify what form), Typhoid Fever, Typhus Fever, Whooping Cough and Yellow Fever.

Nothing in the Paper Today.

Frequently you pick up one of the local papers, and after glancing at the head lines, wearily thrust it aside, remarking "Nothing in the paper today." Did you ever stop to think what phrase—"nothing in the paper today" means? It means that in the day just passed no misfortune has befallen any one in your city, that no fire has wiped out a neighbor's wordly goods, that the grim angel of death has crossed no threshold of a friend, that no poor devil, haunted by the past or misdeed of some other, has crossed the divide by his own hand, that many things that ought not to happen have not happened. So the next time you pick up a paper that doesn't announce a tragedy, give a little thanks instead of grumbling because there is no news.

National Commander Army and Navy Union

Says: "I Have No Hesitation In Endorsing Peruna As An Efficient Remedy For Catarrh."

J. EDWIN BROWNE.

J. Edwin Browne, National Commander Army and Navy Union of U. S. A., 410 11th street, N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I have no hesitation in endorsing your Peruna as a most efficient cure for catarrh. My own experience and that of many friends who have been benefited by its use recommend it to all persons suffering from that complaint."

Says Peruna Saved His Life.

"Peruna has cured me of catarrh. I can work all day, eat hearty, sleep well, and my digestion is all right. I was not able to do a day's work last year. I candidly feel that using your medicine was the means of saving my life. I find it is just what it is recommended to be, and I speak in highest praise of Peruna. I shall recommend it to all my friends."—Alvis A. Nelson, Virgilina, Va.

When any one has catarrh of the head or throat they know it. Snuffing, sneezing, coughing, spitting, gagging, choking—these are some of the symptoms.

When any one has catarrh of the bronchial tubes they are not quite so apt to recognize their trouble as catarrh, although there are a great many people who begin to appreciate the fact that catarrh of the bronchial tubes is sure to create a cough.

Catarrh produces symptoms according to the place in the body where the catarrh is located. Catarrh deranges the function of any organ.

If the catarrh be in the stomach it produces dyspepsia.

If in the lungs it is apt to set up consumption.

If located in the kidneys or bladder it produces urinary disorders.

If in the bowels it deranges the bowels.

Catarrh medicine, in order to be effective, should be an internal remedy, and not a local application.

Peruna has maintained its reputation for many years as an internal catarrh remedy. It operates throughout the whole system. It benefits catarrh of the pelvic organs the same as catarrh of the head or throat.

The Family Relies on Peruna.

A. Howitt Nickerson, Capt. U. S. Army, Adjutant General on General McCook's staff, writes from the Census Building, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"It affords me great pleasure to recommend Peruna as a most excellent tonic with many medicinal qualities that assist nature in overcoming the various ills with which the human family is often afflicted, and is always in danger.

"As a general thing, I have been opposed to what are known as patent medicines, but Peruna has long since overcome this feeling. It is now, as it has been for a long time, a well established family medicine with us, upon which we rely to give tired nature substantial restoration."

Terrible Case of Indigestion.

Mr. Donald Robb, Jr., 16 Wrights Ave., Halifax, Nova Scotia, Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger, Independent Order of Foresters, writes:

"While on a visit to Boston I must have eaten something that did not agree with my stomach, as a terrible case of indigestion followed. Peruna was recommended to me, and after using three bottles I was entirely cured. I therefore recommend Peruna to any one suffering with stomach trouble."

Every Trace of Catarrh Gone.

Mr. James P. Bracken, 610 Tenth Ave., New York City, N. Y., has occupied the office of Water Inspector of New York City, for the past fifteen years. He carries on an extensive plumbing business at 610 10th Ave. He is Past Deputy of Grand Knights of Reigna Celia Council. Knights of Columbus, N. Y. He writes as follows:

"For nearly a dozen years catarrh has bothered me in one form or another. I was troubled with nasal catarrh, that had affected my stomach, which troubled me most in the morning. My appetite was poor, and I did not seem to relish my food. Indigestion bothered me at times also. I was advised to take Peruna, and I took it as prescribed for a month when my cure was almost complete. Today there is not a trace of catarrh in my system, and I can say without hesitation that Peruna cured me."

Agreeable and Effective Tonic.

General John Finn, Washington, D. C., veteran soldier of the civil war, a prominent Grand Army man and commander of the oldest post in the United States, John A. Rawlins Post No. 1, department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, writes:

"Peruna was recommended to me by many of my associates and I have given it a fair trial. Have found it a most agreeable and effective tonic, pleasant soothing, and leaves one free from the deleterious effects produced by the many nostrums now on the market. I have suffered from catarrhal afflictions the past winter, and have found Peruna most beneficial and commend it for what it has done for me."

Relieves Mind and Body.

Mr. G. W. Woodbury, Rogers, Ohio, formerly Captain and Center of the Hiram College Basket Ball Team, writes:

"When body and mind alike were weary and refused to work, a few doses of Peruna restored lost strength and invigorated quicker and more permanently than anything I know."

DEATH OF MISS SARAH BARNHART

An Aged Maiden Lady Enters Into Rest.

Friday at two o'clock the angel of death called away the spirit life of Miss Sarah Barnhart.

Miss Barnhart has been a sufferer for many years, and the summons coming Friday morning and calling her home to rest was gladly welcomed by her.

She was a Christian lady and has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church since childhood.

She leaves to mourn her death a sister Miss Lizzie and a brother Philip Barnhart.

The funeral occured on Sunday afternoon at one o'clock from her late home east of town along the Jacksonville road.

In the absence of her pastor Rev. James B. Stein, Rev. Ambrose Schmidt of the St. John Reformed church officiated. Interment were made in Union Cemetery.

Consigned to The Tomb.

On Thursday afternoon the body of Henry Gorden was laid away in the tomb. The little chapel at Pleasant View where the services were held was filled with friends and comrads of the deceased soldier. As the funeral cortege wended its way to the Union cemetery at Bellefonte a guard of honor composed of soldiers from Company B. marched beside the carriage that bore the remains of the old veteran. At the cemetry three volley were fired and taps sounded.

The casket bearers were the following from Gregg Post No. 95, Gen. John I. Curtin, David Love, Charles Glenn, Amos Garbrick, John Bryan, and William Hampton.

Burglars in Bellefonte.

It is well for the Bellefonte citizens to be careful in regards to keeping their homes locked up securely at night. A report comes to our office of an attempted burglary at the home of Mr. Arthur Kimport on Curtin street.

On Sunday morning about 2 o'clock the young lady who is house-keeper at the Kimport home heard a noise and smelt matches burning. She got up and went down stairs and as she entered the kitchen she heard some one going out the door.

She called Mr. Kimport and they investigated the affair. Some one had gained an entrance through the kitchen window and was in the act of going through the side-board when they were frightened away by the young lady. Nothing was taken but had it not been for this woman frightening them away no doubt they would have made a good haul. Keep your doors and windows securely locked.

Large Crowd at the Park.

On Friday afternoon and evening a very large crowd gathered at Hecla Park the great little summer resort for Bellefonte people. The bad weather did not have the least bit of effect on the people and the report from the station says that Friday's crowd was the largest this season that took advantage of the concerts and dancing held there.

THE BAND CONCERT.

Was a Delightful Musical Treat Enjoyed by all

On Thursday evening the Coleville band gave one of their delighful concerts in front of the Bush House and for fully two hours the large crowd of listeners were pleased with their music. This organization will come out every week and give a concert if the people will assist them a little financially, that is a certain amount of money must be guaranteed in order to buy music and pay the men for the time they lose. We hope the matter can be satisfactorily arranged.

The Bible's at Centre Hall.

Every one who heard Miss Helen Bible in "The Coming of Ruth" knows exactly what they can expect at the Grangers picnic this year when the entire Bible family will hold down the platform at this place during the entire week. Mr. and Mrs. Bible their three daughters and one of the best magicians on the road will give an entertainment every evening during the week. We feel positively sure that they will fill the bill better than any company they have ever had there, and being our own county people the citizens will welcome them cordially. Every place the Bibles have ever performed they have given the most complete satisfaction.

ANOTHER BOLD ROBBERY.

The Walker Home on Linn Street Robbed Tuesday Evening.

While sitting in the parlor entertaining friends the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Walker and Miss Jane McCalmont was robbed on Tuesday evening of valuable jewelry.

The robbery was supposed to have taken place between 9:30 and 10:30 in the evening while the people were walking along the streets, at the Walker home friends were visiting and the domestic was in the kitchen, and in fact no one ever thought a deed so bold would have been committed at this hour so early in the evening. Three strange men were seen walking up and down the street about this time.

Who ever the thievee were they certainly had a whole lot of nerve. They climbed up a pole near the rear of the house and stepped to the porch roof and gained an entrance to the house through a window.

They secured three gold watches one of Miss McCalmont's one belonging to Miss Shortledge and one of Mr. Walkers' a gold chain set with pearls was also taken and a number of valuable stick pins.

A most careful investigation should be made and every effort possible to capture these criminals and give them the fullest extent of the law.

On Sunday evening the home of Mr. Charles McCurdy was entered by burglars but they were frightened away before they secured any bounty. The case is now in the hands of the police and they are doing their best to run the thieves down. We sincerely hope they will be successful. Again we say to the good people of the town, keep your doors and windows securely locked, and if you have a little 32 put it under your pillow at night and if you have a chance shoot the villains in their tracks.

A State Road for Bellefonte

At the last session of council the appended resolution calling on the County Commissioners to ask the State Highway Commission for a State road through Bellefonte. Boggs Township and Milesburg are asking for a State road and there is also one in contemplation from the Bellefonte borough line to Hecla Park. This would give Centre county a splendid State road at a very small cost and it is hoped the project will go through. The following is the resolution of council.

To the Commissioners of Centre County:

WHEREAS, the section of highway in Bellefonte Borough, County of Centre, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, being about 6750 feet in length and situated as follows, beginning on the northern boundary line of this Borough, where a section of highway is being constructed by the Commenwealth, thence by Water Street, Linn Street, Allegheny Street, and Bishop Street to the eastern boundary line of the Borough, is in need of construction and

WHEREAS, application has already been made for State aid in the Construction of another section of the same highway connecting with the section afor said, said connecting section lying in Spring Township, Centre County, and

WHEREAS, State aid is desired for the permanent improvement of the section of highway in Bellefonte Borough, under the Act approved May 1st 1905, providing for the escablishment of a State Highway Department, etc., therefore be it

Resolved, That the borough council of said Bellefonte Borough, in regular session assembled on this 5th day of August 1907, do on behalf of said borough hereby petition for State aid as herein before stated, and be it further

Resolved, That the said borough council do for themselves and their successors in office to provide for the payment of and to pay from the borough funds, in the manner provided by the said Act, one-eighth part of the expense of said improvement to the Commonwealth, when due and be it further

Resolved, that the commissioners of said County of Centre be and are hereby petitioned to join in requesting the State Highway Department to extend State aid for the said road improvement, under the said Act.

The foregoing is hereby certified to be a true and correct copy of resolutions adopted by the said borough council of Bellefonte Borough, Centre County.

Attest W. T. KELLY, Clerk,
JOHN I. CURTIN, Burgess.

Pres. of Council.

The Card of Thanks Nuisance.

The day is not far distant when "Cards of Thanks" will be a thing of the past. When death enters a home neighbors never fail to do all in their power to place a silver lining back of the dark cloud, and they do not expect or desire any thanks through the public press. But one, however, not to be outdone, sent the following: "Mr. Editor: I desire to thank the friends and neighbors most heartily in this manner for their co-operation during the illness and death of my late husband, who escaped from me by the hand of death on last Friday, while eating breakfast. To my friends and all who contribute so willingly toward making the last moments and the funeral a success, I desire to remember most kindly, hoping these lines will find them enjoying the same blessing. I have also a good milch cow and roan gelding horse, 8 years old, which I will sell cheap. 'God moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform. He plants His footsteps on the sea and rides upon the storm.' Also a black and white shoat cheap."

Women Who Wear Well

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life will make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the charge which comes with marriage. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant drains which are often consequent on marriage and motherhood not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness. As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. Half a million women and more have found health and happiness in the use of Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label.

Peanuts V. S. Beefsteak

Prof. F. E. Jaff, who has been connected with the State University for 30 years, says, in a bulletin prepared for the United States Department of Agriculture, that 10 cent's worth of peanuts contains more than twice the protein and six times the amount of energy contained in a porterhouse steak.

These conclusions were arrived at after exhaustive study and experiments carried on in Berkeley with students and others as subjects.

Additional Locals.

—Col. Hugh S. Taylor has purchased a new "Winton" automobile.

—R. B. Taylor the contractor received two dandy new dump wagons from Syracuse, N. Y., on Friday.

—Rev. Orbison will preach in the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning at 10.30.

—On Monday Frank Baney drove "Rabie" Henry Lowery's bay gelding a half mile in a minute and nine seconds. He was timed by Mr. Lowery and some of Irvin Grays men.

—Robert T. Garman has added another jewel to his good family, this time a sweet little girl upon whom little Bobby, the first-born, looks with mingled pleasure and wonderment.

—We have no park the people congregate in the Diamond. Why not have seats in the Court House yard and call it Curtin Park, with plenty of light and music?

A Citizen.

—The Fuel Supply Co's. office on Railroad street is being beautifully painted and when finished will be one of the prettiest offices in town. The artistic work is being done by George Waite the all around man.

—That big bird the stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Young on Monday evening and left a dear little baby girl. Major is all tickled to death. Mrs. Young and the little girl are getting along nicely.

—The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shugerts is lying seriously ill at the Malin home on Howard street. The little girl had the whooping cough and now she has taken pneumonia. We sincerely hope she will speedily recover.

—On Saturday night the Managers of the Theatorium announce that they will reproduce the great Elks Parade that recently occurred in Philadelphia. It is is surely one of their best sets of pictures and no doubt a large crowd will be present to see them.

—The Tyrone members of the Nittany Country club will extend the courtesies of the club to the great array of visitors on picnic day. The shooting traps and tennis court will be given to general use, and the members will invite the picknickers to visit the club house during the afternoon.

—The samples of milk secured at Tipton, Blair county, during the recent National Guard encampment of the Second brigade have been analyzed by Professor Frear, of Pennsylvania State College, and in every particular were found satisfactory. Reports of the milk's purity have been received at the office of the state dairy and food commissioner at Harrisburg.

—The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church will hold an exchenge Saturday August 24th. The eatables they will offer for sale will all be home made, and will consist of bread, pies cakes, hard biscuit, potato chips, pata to salad and ice cream, also a nice lot of sprons, etc., will be sold. Don't forget the date, and if you want something good in this line, give the ladies a call.

—Rev. James P. Hughes had the pleasure of receiving the Autobiography of the Rev. Thomas P. Hunt D. D. from his daughter Mrs. Anna Wells, of Wilksbarre, who was a pupil of Mr. Hughes in 1852 and 1855, when he taught at the Luzerne Presbyterial Institute at Whyoming Penn. Mr. Hughes prizes this volume very much as a valuable contribution to his library.

—The School board at its meetting Monday night decided not to elect a teacher in place of Miss Francis Elmore who resigned. Instead of doing that they will tear out the partition between her room and Miss Helen Harpers and give the former's scholars to the latter. It was found that in some of the rooms there are only 15 or 18 pupils and they decided it would be more economical and produce just as good results to consolidate these two rooms.

—Clyde Blackford, the popular ess Bishop street restaurant man, will startt next week on some important improvements to his popular eating house. He will build a 100 feet addition in the rear and put at one side a big up-to-date kitchen with new ranges and latest modern improvements. He will install an experienced chef and serve bill-of-fare's that will make your mouth water. He expects to make his restaurant the swellest in any town between Philadelphia ank Pittsburg. Clyde understands the restaurant business and can make it a success without a doubt.

—The Herald Square Stock Company that pleased the Bellefonte people last spring with a weeks entertainment in the Opera House will open the Theatre this year Sept. 2nd. with a weeks engagement. The Herald Square Co. are no strangers to the Bellefonte people, As they gave the best of satisfaction here last Spring and as we notice in the different exchanges they have made quite a change in the make up of the company which has greatly strengthened the troupe. So you can tell your friends that the Herald Square Company will open the Garman Opera House Labor Day September 2nd.

—Edward Hoy bought the Ardell Lumber plant Wednesday for $5470.

—Harry H. Young of Valley View was taken to the Bellefonte Hospital suffering from an attack of typhoid fever.

—A new grocery store will be opened up about the 1st of September in the room formerly occupied by Mr. Roan in the Brown building.

—A picnic was held Wednesday at Lemont in honor of Miss Margaret Thomas of Peoria. The festive gathering took place in the beautiful grove on the Bathgate farm.

—Mr. and Mrs. William Linn of Tyrrell Ohio have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter Miss Della to Mr. Clarence Garbrick of Bellefonte. The happy event will take place on Wednesday August 21st at high noon.

—We are pleased to note the splendid developement of the Lock Haven Normal School. Last year was the most prosperous in its history. It is patronized by young people from every section of Pennsylvania. The fall term begins September 9th. You will be interested in its illustrated catalogue.

—Almost forty counties in addition to several foreign states were represented in the student body of the Lock Haven State Normal School last year. This is the best evidence that the patronage of this important school is widely distributed. The fall term begins September 9th. See its beautiful catalogue.

—Albert Barger of Philipsburg played the slip on his friends, and the middle of last month went to Atlantic City and was married to Miss May Stump of Linden Hall. The happy couple expect to go to housekeeping in that place shortly. The best wishes of their many friends go with them.

—The county commissioners this week received 5,090 dog tax tags and are now sending them out to the various tax collectors throughout the county. Under a recent act it is compulsory to pay a dog tax and any owner of a dog who refuses or fails to do so is liable to have his canine shot. Therefore, if you don't want to lose your dog pay your tax and put a collar and tag on him.

—On account of the big strike that is now on among the Western Union Telegraph Operators all over the United States, and as the young man that had charge of the Bellefonte office was a Union man he closed up the shack and left. Another, fellow arrived in Bellefonte on the 1.05 train on Tuesday to open up the office again, but he only remained until 4.43. So the office is closed again.

—George Fox & Sons, painters of Lock Haven, have been awarded the contract for doing the painting on the new agricultural building at State College. At present they are doing the priming of a greater portion of the interior woodwork, which is being made at Hipple's planing mill. After this is completed the firm will send a crew of men to State College to finish the work. William Tidlow, the contractor, also of this city, has charge of the carpenter work.

—Since Mr. Loop and his wife have left the Theatorium, the work of managing the affair has fallen to Messrs. Bussler and Barlett. Miss Moerschberger sells the tickets. Mr. Brown and Mrs. Farish will do the singing, and Misses Walsh and Rankin and Mr. Edmund Joseph look after the instrumental part of the music. In fact it is now run entirely by our home town people. Messrs. Leighter and Shreck are the proprietors and managers of the Theatorium.

—William F. Dunning, who for the past eight months has been the efficient organist in the Bellefonte Methodist church has resigned and his place for the next six weeks or two months will be filled by Mrs. Miller nee Miss Girtie Smith. Mr. Dunning left Bellefonte on Sunday and went to his parents home at Osceola Mills. From there he expects to go to Harrisburg to continue his studies in music. At the same time he has an offer from Harrisburg churches to become their organist but has not yet decided which one he will accept.

—Six hundred and thirty-eight arrests were made on the Pennsylvania railroad lines east of Pittsburg during the month of June by the company's own policemen, as shown by the official report issued yesterday. Two hundred and thirty-seven arrests were made for illegal train riding alone. Of this number 31 paid the fare, while 107 were sent to jail and 66 fined. The report shows that 147 arrests were made for trespassing, 63 for larceny and burglary and 15 for breaking into cars. Out of the 58 arrests made for intoxication, 27 of the principals were fined and 26 sent to jail. Stoning trains caused the arrest of 13, six of whom were discharged. Two arrests were made for defrauding the public. The extra precautions being taken by the railroad company's officers have decreased the number of arrests for illegal train riding, which has given the railroad companies so much trouble in the last few years.

Is It Your Own Hair?

Do you pin your hat to your own hair? Can't do it? Haven't enough hair? It must be you do not know Ayer's Hair Vigor! Here's an introduction! May the acquaintance result in a heavy growth of rich, thick, glossy hair! And we know you'll never be gray.

"I think that Ayer's Hair Vigor is the most wonderful hair grower that was ever made. I have used it for some time and I can truthfully say that I am greatly pleased with it. I cheerfully recommend it as a splendid preparation." — MISS V. BROCK, Wayland, Mich.

Wedding Bells Ring Out.

On Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chandler on Pine street was the scene of a pretty wedding.

It was the giving in marriage of their daughter Miss Dora May to Mr. Arthur J. Bickle. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Spangler of the United Brethren church. About fifty guests were present to see the happy event take place.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served.

The bride looked beautiful in a gown of navy blue taffata silk trimmed in silk lace. She did not carry the usual bouquet nor was she attended by a bridesmaid.

She is quite a home girl, understanding thoroughly the rudiments of a housekeeper and we know she will make a splendid helpmate through life.

We have known the groom for years, and he has always been a steady, hard working young man. He was a member of Co. B. at one time and made a splendid soldier. He is a brakeman on the Pittsburg Division of the P. R. R. and is held in high esteem by his fellow workmen. They will visit friends in Bellefonte and vicinity a while before going to their western home.

This paper joins in with their many friends in wishing them joy and happiness through life.

J. Irvin Morris Dead.

Squire J. Irvin Morris a highly respected citizen of Milesburg died Monday evening at 6 o'clock. The cause of his death was bright's disease. He was a gentleman about 68 years of age. He leaves a wife and two small children to mourn his death. The funeral occurred on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in the Union cemetery, Bellefonte.

"Beggar My Neighbor."

By MARTHA M'CULLOCH-WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

"Five—nine—eleven—thirteen." Miss Gatty counted anxiously, surveying her flock of hens. "I can't make out any more—but, dear me, the creatures fidget so—then they're all exactly alike."

Again she counted, again, yet again. The tale was still the unlucky thirteen. Miss Gatty looked worried. Well she might. The hens were not her own, but held in trust for her absent sister.

That, however, was less disquieting than the potentialities behind possible runaways. Since the missing three had not come to the feeding call, it was clear that they were either dead or in duress. Either state meant the same thing—trespass upon the Lalor lawn and strawberry beds. The Lalor establishment loomed big and imposing 200 yards away, but that was no distance at all to active foragers such as White Leghorns. Moreover, there had been trouble before—trouble which had left a residuum of strained relations between the big house and the cottage. The cottage was almost the Gattys' sole possession, albeit there had been a time when everything in sight had been Gatty land.

"I don't know what to do. Susanna would go look for them," Miss Gatty said to the clothes post, her sole support and confidant. "I suppose I ought to do it, but then how can I? Those Lalors are so new and so rich they'd insult me—why, they weren't even afraid to be nasty to Susanna. Actually the woman told her she had no business to keep hens if she couldn't afford wired runs for them—as though we hadn't a right to keep anything we please on our own place. But I do wish they'd stay at home. And I wish Susanna were here. That's selfish. She is having a fine time at quarterly meeting and, patience knows, she goes seldom enough anywhere."

Miss Gatty was slender and pale and pretty if she had turned thirty. She had appealing brown eyes and slim hands, taper fingered in spite of house and garden work. She loved the garden. Indeed, it had been her salvation after she had worn herself to a shadow wrestling with primary scholars. She did not in the least mind hens there. True, they scratched and pecked and wallowed mightily, and her garden was, in fact, chaotic. Flowers grew indiscriminately cheek and jowl with vegetables.

Notwithstanding she understood how aggravating vagrant hens might be to more orderly gardeners; also that with strawberries ripe the flock was a besom of destruction. Those at her feet, having eaten their breakfast to the last grain, began straying lightly and as they walked preening themselves. Watching them narrowly, she saw suspicious scarlet flecks upon more than one white breast. They had certainly been at the Lalor berries. She put her hands up over her head, thinking hard.

It was 8 o'clock of a lovely June morning. Birds sang riotously all about. Miss Gatty listened to them and said, nodding her head toward the hens: "I do believe all this comes of going against nature. If you had broods like the birds you'd be too busy feeding them to go hunting mischief."

"Humph! They'd be worse than ever. I say thank the Lord there are no squalling keepers to whoop them up. If there were—well, I'd have to move, that's all," a gruff masculine voice said behind her. Miss Gatty turned as though shot. What she saw confronting her evoked a strangled cry of dismay. A tall man stood glowering at her and swinging militantly a bunch of headless white hens. "I've brought back your property, not being a thief," he went on. "Now, let me pay you for the satisfaction I had in wringing their necks. Let me also warn you the rest will go the same way as sure as they cross my fence. Here, take the money. If $5 is not enough"—

"Will you please to go away—instantly?" Miss Gatty said, actually stamping her foot. "Keep your money—keep the poor chickens too. Maybe they will pay some part of your damages"—

"Thank you. But I'm not in the poultry line—neither restaurants," the man said, flinging the dead hens at her feet. A fleck of blood flew upon Miss Gatty's faded frock. Noting it, the man said awkwardly: "Please excuse me. I've been acting the brute. But those berries were my pride"—

"You had a right to—do as you did," Miss Gatty panted. "Only—please go away! Go quick!"

She spoke stooping over the hens. The man looked at her, close enough to see two tears plash down on the corpses. He ran incontinently from the sight, but not altogether cravenly. Inside five minutes he was back with a basket of fine, dewy, scarlet berries. Miss Gatty had vanished. So had the slain. He walked around to the back door searching for her without finding. Being a determined person, he stepped boldly inside. Miss Gatty sat in the prim dining room, her head buried in her arms beside the old mahogany table. She was sobbing—hard, dry sobs. The intruder half turned as though to run away again, but thought better of it, stepped forward and set down his basket in front of her with a resounding thump. As she sprang up startled he said in an embarrassed voice: "Maybe you don't know who I am. My name's Lalor"—

"But I did know it. You should not be here," Miss Gatty panted. "Your wife"—

"Thank you, but I haven't got a wife—not yet," Mr. Lalor said, with a grin. "You must be thinking of my sister-in-law. Fanny keeps house for me, but she hates the place and wants to leave. I think I'll let her—and see if I can't have peace—and neighbors. Don't you think we ought to be neighbors? I do. So I've brought these," pointing to the berries. "Won't you give me some radishes to take home for my luncheon?"

"To be sure, I'll be so glad!" Miss Gatty cried, springing up, quite forgetful of tear stains, and darting toward her dear garden. She meant to go alone, but Andrew Lalor was right behind her. Long before the radishes were chosen they had buried all grievances, past, present and to come. Before he left she had told him all about Susanna—Susanna, who was the youngest, but had so much a wiser head on her shoulders. All unconsciously she had told him many other things—things that set him meditating and smiling all the way home. Once or twice, too, he blushed and gnawed angrily at his mustache, muttering: "Lord, to think that I offered her money! Took her for a quarrelsome old maid! It's going to take time to live that down, but I'll do it as sure as I'm six feet two!"

Susanna stayed on for a whole week. Quarterly meeting had turned out to be the beginning of a revival, but Miss Gatty did not mind in the least.

"You must not worry thinking I am lonely," she wrote. "I am quite too busy, keeping the hens as they should be kept. And really I am finding out that we have very good neighbors."

Susanna puzzled over that last sentence, at least until she came home to find Mr. Lalor established in the privilege of keeping ward over the foragings of the White Leghorns. Her eyes twinkled comprehension as he shook hands on presentation. He caught the twinkle and answered it boldly with: "Please may I have your sister Helen? I knew it would do no good to ask before you came home."

"Why, yes; I think you may," Susanna said, the twinkle deepening. "But do you think it is quite fair—this way of playing beggar my neighbor?"

"You're really responsible. Your hens have taught me to take what I want regardless of bounds," he flung back at her. Susanna laughed outright and answered honestly, "If they really did it I'm mighty glad."

Sandy's Criticism.

A young Scotchman went to a London school of music, where he learned to play the violoncello fairly well. On his return to his native village he gathered his friends together to hear his new instrument. When he had played one or two tunes, he looked up expectantly. After a slight pause his old grandfather spoke.

"Eh, maun," he said, "it's a maircy there's na smell wi' it!"—Liverpool Mercury.

How Will the World End?

It has always been an intensely interesting conjecture to scientists and, at the same time, the greater part of the other intelligent members of society as to the way in which our world will at length come to an end. Many think that it will be through the gradual cooling of the sun, which will eventually fail to give out sufficient heat to sustain life on our planet. But another—and a particularly unpleasant—fate that might befall us is explained in a work by Mr. Ellard Gore. "Real danger," says he, "is always to be feared from the presence of immense dark bodies, moving unseen in space, vast dead suns, whose collision with our own would increase its heat enormously and thus instantly destroy the earth." We should not, however, be without a warning of our terrible end, for on entering a radius of 15,000,000,000 miles from the sun the advancing body would begin to shine with reflected light, and fifteen years would elapse between the time of the destroyer's being sighted and its collision with the sun.

Glass Cutting.

The layman who is introduced to the mysteries of cutting glass for the first time is amazed at the amount of work that the workman does entirely by his eye. The first stage of the bowl which is to be cut finds it in a perfectly plain condition, not a scratch upon it and only a half dozen or more marks in red chalk, which mean absolutely nothing to the unpracticed eye. But to the workman they mean the whole pattern. Perhaps the dish is a salad bowl. The marks in chalk will run from the edge, five intervals apart, down to the center of the bowl at the bottom. In one of the divisions of the bowl thus marked there may be a little further marking in the shape perhaps of a diamond. This indicates the pattern into which the bowl is to be cut, and it will be repeated in each of the five divisions. All the intricacies of the design the workman has in his head, and they develop on the glass in a way which seems to the looker on absolutely marvelous.—New York Times.

"Trying on" Furniture.

When you go to buy a suit of furniture nowadays in one of our department stores you don't have to speculate as to how it will look in your room nor whether it will fit in or not. As soon as the salesman sees that a particular suit has met your fancy he calls for a porter or two and turns them loose in one of several rooms fitted up around the main showroom, setting them at work removing all the furniture in it. Then the suit that you seem to be hankering after is placed in appropriate positions in this room, and you can see at a glance just how the bedroom or parlor or dining room will look if you buy that particular suit.

There are a dozen of these smaller rooms around the main showroom, and as each one is decorated in a different manner it is easy to pick one out that approximates the scheme of your room at home. Like many modern ways of selling goods it is expensive in the beginning, but it pays in the end, for this plan of showing goods seldom fails of its intended effect.—New York Press.

A Widow Who Was Calm.

A lawyer was entertaining dinner guests recently with stories from his personal experiences.

"A woman came into my office one afternoon and said she wanted to see a lawyer on a rather important matter," he said. "She was very prim and self possessed."

"'What can I do for you?' I asked.

"'Well,' she said in an easy tone, 'my husband was hurt in the wreck the other day.'

"I noticed she was dressed in mourning, but from her indifferent tone I gathered that it had no connection with her husband's accident.

"'Was your husband badly injured?' I asked.

"'Yes,' she answered in the same quiet voice. 'He got his head cut off.'"—Kansas City Times.

The Talmud.

The Jewish Talmud has come down to us only through the heroic efforts of the Jews themselves and the intrepid service of John Reuchlin. Its reading was condemned by various edicts of emperors and kings; its circulation was prohibited by popes and theologians. Twelve thousand copies of this monumental work were burned at Cremona in 1569, and a similar fate befell 5,000 copies of the Koran by order of Cardinal Ximines on the taking of Grenada by Ferdinand and Isabella.—Boston Post.

C. B. Burhans testifies after four years.

G. B. Burhans, of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symtoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble." Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

What Esnah's Father Did.

By HAROLD CHRISTY.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

"I may have saved your life," declared Avice earnestly.

"What's life when your boots are muddy and no chance to get them cleaned?" scoffed Ned Hastings. "I'd rather take chances on walking under a ladder than going out in the muddy street to escape the hoodoo."

"I think you're horrid," pouted Avice. "Next time I shall let you go under the ladder if you want to, but don't blame me for what happens."

"Next time you'll do just the same," he declared, with a laugh. "I never saw any one quite so superstitious in my life."

"You must have spilled salt," said Avice dolorously, "and you never threw any over your left shoulder. I just know that there is going to be a quarrel."

"Not unless we meet with more ladders over the sidewalk," he laughed, "or some other of your numerous signs of evil luck."

It was a tactful remark well qualified to fulfill Avice's prophecy, but at that moment the girl darted forward and picked something from the sidewalk.

"It's the best kind of luck to find money on a Monday," she declared. "It means that you will gain all the week."

"It's good luck to find a pocketbook on the 1st of April," he scoffed. "It means you will be fooled for a year."

It was fortunate for Hastings that the girl did not hear him. Superstition was a dangerous subject between them. Hastings would not confess to his few little superstitions and was intolerant of her lore of signs and omens. Once she had declined his offer of marriage because he spoke on one of her unlucky days, and when he had again put his fate to the test on a day guaranteed by the almanacs to be most lucky she had recalled the couplet about a change of name though not of letter being a change for worse and not for better and had said "No," though her heart cried "Yes."

"ARE YOU ESNAH, SON OF HAMID?" SHE DEMANDED.

Just now she was too busy examining the contents of the pocketbook to give heed to his flings. There were two five-dollar bills, a two and two ones. The rest of the bulk was made up of papers covered with strange characters that neither could make out. There was not a scrap of paper to show the name of the owner.

"Maybe they are charms," said Avice in an awed voice.

"It's not Hebrew," said the more practical Hastings. "It may be Arabic. I saw some writing once that looked like that."

"We must advertise it," she announced. "It belongs to some mystic, and there is no telling what may happen."

"He should be clever enough to find it himself if he is a wonder worker," scoffed Hastings. "I'll bet he sells rugs from house to house or nougat from a stand."

Avice frowned at his levity, and until they reached home she could talk of nothing but the pocketbook and its mysterious owner. As they parted at the foot of the steps Hastings caught her hand.

"You won't forget that we are going to the boat club reception tonight?" he begged. "Don't get so completely wrapped up in your magi that you forget me."

"I'll be ready," she assured him, with sudden penitence. "I will be ready at 8. Will that be time enough?"

"Just right," he agreed. "I'll be here on the moment."

He turned away and went off up the street. This was the first reception given by his boat club in its new house, and it was the event of the year to its members. For three months they had been preparing for it, and Hastings was all excitement.

He was at the house five minutes before 8 with a huge bouquet, but his face fell when Avice came into the room in the same cloth dress she had worn that afternoon.

"I didn't forget," she cried as she noted the disappointment in his face, "but I must go downtown first. I am in such terrible danger, Ned."

"What is the matter?" he cried in alarm, forgetting the reception for a moment. For answer she held out a paper.

"Let me read this," she commanded. "Listen: 'Esnah, son of Hamid, lost his pocketbook. If the finder does not return the same, Esnah, son of Hamid, will do even as did his father before him.'"

Hastings smiled.

"Where is the danger?" he demanded.

"He says," she went on, "'three days will be allowed,' and this is Saturday's paper. That means that unless he gets it tonight he will—oh! I don't know what he will do. That is what makes it so terrible."

"And you mean to say that he has frightened you into taking the pocketbook back tonight. Give it to me, and I will take it over in the morning. I'll take chances on the curse."

"But he says 'the finder,'" she persisted. "I'm the finder. We must go at once, Ned."

For a moment disappointment and impatience struggled with love. Then the saving sense of humor came to his relief, and he threw back his head and laughed.

"Get your things on," he said when his laughter died, "and we will hunt up this sorcerer of the pleasant promises. Perhaps we can get to the reception before it closes anyway."

They found the address with some difficulty. It was a curio shop in the foreign quarter, and through the jumble of rugs, Turkish slippers and hookahs in the window Esnah, the son of Hamid, could be seen puffing away at his cigarette.

He came forward politely as they entered, turning to Hastings for information as to his wants. Avice pressed eagerly forward.

"Are you Esnah, son of Hamid?" she demanded. "Are you the man who lost the purse?"

"I am he," said the Egyptian, with a flash of his white teeth beneath the black mustache.

Avice's face fell. She had anticipated a man wrapped in mystic robes sitting over a brazier on which bubbled a caldron. He was a very ordinary shopkeeper without even a fez to lend local color.

"There were in the purse $14 and some most important papers. It was of red leather, with a strap," he went on.

"This must be yours," she said as she passed over the purse.

"I am most obliged," said Esnah, sharply scrutinizing the couple. He could see that a money reward was not sought. "May I offer the lady a slight souvenir token of appreciation of her goodness?"

"Have you a lucky charm?" she asked, turning from the gay scarfs he was fingering.

Esnah smiled and went to the rear of the store, where the safe stood. It was not the first time a charm had been requested. He drew from a drawer an odd looking stone. It was one of many that came from Germany and cost $8 a gross, but Avice received it reverently and tucked it into her pocketbook with elaborate care.

Esnah stood politely in the attitude of one whose business is concluded and who waits only to be dismissed. But Avice was not through. She wandered about the store looking at the stock and making a few small purchases to justify her curiosity until at last she gained courage.

"Please," she said softly. Esnah was all attention.

"I want to know," she went on hurriedly, "what your father did to the thief who took his pocketbook and did not return it."

"My father was Hamid, son of Akkar," began the Egyptian. "To the merchants of Alexandria he was well known. One day in the market place he lost his wallet. For three days he told his loss, and then on the third day"—

"Yes?" Avice was almost leaning over the counter.

"On the third day," repeated Esnah, "he decided that he would see his pocketbook no more, so he went and bought another."

"Ned," said Avice softly as they came in sight of her home, "if you promise never to tell"—

"I won't rub it in," he promised.

"Then I'll marry you if you still want me. I guess I'm cured of superstition."

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me."

The young man broke off the habit at once and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again."

The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."

CHILD TRAINING.

A School In Which Mothers Should Be Taught the Art.

If a child is told he must not do a certain thing, no argument should change the verdict, and if he disobeys he must be made to pay a penalty one way or another.

He need not be treated with severity, but he may be deprived of some pleasure or privilege or toy and in that way will be made to understand.

Indulgent mothers should remember that they are treating unfairly and unkindly the little creatures whom they love most of all. Your kind of kindness is not kindness at all.

You who are so careful what the child puts into his stomach should watch just as carefully what he puts into his brain.

Through lack of proper teaching he can acquire a state of mental dyspepsia that will become chronic and which will make it impossible for him to enjoy the very sweetest things in life.

Think about it, will you?

The child, like the adult, makes friends, and the more tender your child is loved the better are his fortunes likely to be.

Help your child to be splendid, unselfish, beautiful of character. There are enough of the other kind in the world, and it is people of the better sort that are needed.

There should be a school in which mothers should be taught the art of bringing up their children.

It is upon this teaching that the character of the future generations depends.

These spoiled babies who are allowed to hit their aunties in the noses with tin pails will never be presidents of the United States. They won't even be able to hold down the job of office boy. Many a man struggled unsuccessfully all through his life to overcome the frightful havoc wrought by the silly indulgence of a devoted mother.

Wanted Permanent Employment.

Old Sam had been for several days patiently sitting on the bank of the Rappahannock river near the dam, holding his shotgun in his hand.

Finally he attracted the attention of a passerby, who asked, "Well, Uncle Sam, are you looking for something to do?"

"No, sah," answered Sam. "I's gettin' paid fo' what I's doin'."

"Indeed!" answered the stranger. "And what may that be?"

"Shootin' de muskrats dat am underminin' de dam," answered Sam.

"Well, there goes one now!" exclaimed the stranger excitedly. "Why don't you shoot?"

"S'pose I wants to lose mys job, sah?" answered Sam complacently.—Lippincott's Magazine.

TYRONE'S BUSINESS MEN'S PICNIC.

To Be Held At Hecla Park, Near Bellefonte, August 29.

Hecla Park, the site selected for the Tyrone picnic, Thursday August 29th, is situated several miles from Bellefonte on the Bellefonte Central railroad. This recreation and rest spot is conceded to be one of the most beautiful natural parks in Pennsylvania with an abundance of good water and large shade trees. The railroad runs directly through the park, which is, indeed, one of Nature's beautiful spots. The excellent ball ground will be used during both morning and afternoon, two first-class teams having been selected for the games, the race track will also be the scene of many of the amusing contests for which the amusement committee is now preparing.

Music will be provided by the Tyrone Symphony Orchestra of eleven pieces and the spacious dancing pavilion will accommodate more than one hundred couples. The dancing, as in former years will be free to all who care to use the floor. There are a number of boats on the lake which can be hired at very reasonable rates. It is already known that lunch will be served on the ground and it is not improbable that a full meal can be bought.

The fare from Tyrone will be $1.25 adults and 65 cents for children Let all Tyrone and vicinity turn out for a rousing good time.

Kind of Raising Thunder.

A family living on Lamb street had a party of some kind on Saturday evening and it would have been all right had it of ended at midnight, but the noise and disturbance was carried on until five o'clock Sunday morning. Now this is a civilized community and the people living around there say they will not tolerate anything of the kind again. If these people are use to living in this manner they had better move away off in the country where they will not disturb their neighbors. Now this is just a word of warning and it must be heeded.

The Centre County Fair

The big Centre county fair will this year be held on the 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th of October, and now is the time for Centre county farmers to begin planning for their exhibits of stock and agriculture products. It is the intention of the management to make the fair this year bigger and better in every way than it has ever been in the past. The rain of Monday and Tuesday last year and the unusually cold weather which followed during the rest of the week not only interfered with bringing in of many exhibits but also kept many people away so the attendance was not up to what it might have been.

But the managers of the fair association are not discouraged and this year, with good weather, will show the people what a big fair is. But to do this they will need the co-operation of not only the farmers, but business men and the women of the county. To have a successful fair there must be plenty of exhibits and it remains with the people of the county to furnish these.

And it is now none to early to begin planning for these exhibits. If you have some good wheat, and we know most every farmer in Centre county has, save a little of the best of it. If you have some promising fruit, prune around it carefully so it may become as perfect as possible. If you have stock that is blooded and thrifty give it the proper attention so that when the fair time is here you will know that your exhibit is not only a worthy one but one which will likely win you money.

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach, in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough "cures"? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—The Business Men's Picnic August 20th.

—Mrs. Thomas Caldwell was admitted to the Bellefonte Hospital for treatment.

—The John Anderson home on Bishop street is to be offered at public sale Saturday, August 31.

—The people of the St. John's Episcopal church expect to occupy their new Parrish House on Sunday September 1st. 1907.

—The flower bed in Mrs. Charley McCafferty's yard near the P. R. R. freight station is certainly one of beauty.

—Hon. W. C. Lingle was badly hurt last week by falling from a car. We are pleased to say that he is able to be around again.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Bauer and family and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Yeager and family are camping at the old Beezer homestead up Spring Creek.

—Ruth Rapp the youngest daughter of Mrs. Jacob Rapp who has been quite ill with scarlet fever is getting along nicely and will soon be able to be out.

—The Free show down on the corner continues to draw large crowds every night. From appearances the fellows seem to be taking in lots of money.

—We don't know why it is, but Russel Blair seems to be making a number of trips over the L. and T. R. R. Must be some attraction down Penns Valley.

—"Buck" Davis a brakeman on the Pittsburg Division of the P. R. R. had the misfortune of having his ankle badly sprained. He is home on a furlough.

—Leander Green nabbed a "bo hunks" cow out near the furnace Sunday evening and put her in the pond. About fifteeen minutes afterwards the cow was seen going home at 2:20 pace. Some one had unlocked the door.

—There was a surprise party in honor of the birthday of John Watson, brakeman on the shifter, given at his home on East Lamb street, Wednesday evening. There were about thirty guests present and all report having a most enjoyable time.

—Irvin G. Gray, of Stormstown, now has a string of nine horses, most of them two and three years old, at the Centre county fair grounds which he is working out for the after summer racing season. He has several that are exceedingly fast, and will maybe make him big money on the track.

—There will be no preaching in the Presbyterian church on the 18th and 25th of this month, but on Sunday September 1st a Labor Day Sermon will be preached by Rev. J. Allison Platts. All labor organizations of the community are especially invited to be present. Dr. Platts is now away on his vacation.

—Miss Ella Alters won the beautiful silver set given away by the Rhynehart Medicine Co. on Saturday evening The silver set was given to Miss Alters as being the most popular young lady in Bellefonte. The other contestant was Miss Marie Gherity who lost by the small margin of 15 votes.

—The barn on the farm of Prof. John Hamilton located two miles from State College, was struck by lightning on Friday morning and totally destroyed. John Spicer Jr., who is the tenant on the farm is a heavy loser, having had four hogs, one colt, about eight hundred dozen of wheat and all his hay destroyed with no insurance.

—On Sunday Miss Helen Bible of Philadelphia and Mr. Clarence Garbrick a young student from the same city delighted the congregation at the Presbyterian church with a beautiful duet, Both young people have beautifully cultivated voices and the duet they sang "Hark, Hark My Soul," was one of the prettiest ever sung in that church.

—What Bellefonte needs badly is a good street sprinkler. A large tank that will hold enough water to soak the road from the station to the Court House and from there to Linn and Bishop streets twice a day. It would pay some one to jump into the business. The way our streets are sprinkled now is not any better than a heavy dew.

—On Tuesday August the 20, the Committee appointed by the Centre District of the United Evangelical church to select a parsonage for their Presiding Elder will meet at Coburn Centre County and decide definitely what place they will purchase Bellefonte is one of the bidders but it is said Mifflinburg and other places have made better offers. We would be pleased to have the Reverend gentleman locate here.

Charles Miller, son of John C. Miller, former editor of the News and Republican is visiting in Bellefonte. Charles has grown to be quite a man and has launched out upon the world on his own hook. He is employed by the Westinghouse Electric Co. at Pittsburg and is getting along splendidly.

Mr. W. J. Carlin one of the most influential business men from the lower end of Penns Valley was a business visitor in Bellefonte Friday. Mr. Carlin is Justice of the Peace and has a large store at Rebersburg. We dont know his politics, any way he is an all around business man, Democrat or Republican.

Miss Mae E. Shaw of Williamsport was a pleasant visitor in Bellefonte Thursday. Miss Shaw is spending her vacation on her uncle's large farm near Mt. Eagle and as she has many friends in Bellefonte she spent the day visiting them. Miss Shaw will leave Mt. Eagle in about a week and go direct to New York City where she will get the most correct and up-to-date styles in millinery for Madam Jones' large establishment of Williamsport. Miss Shaw is manager of this well known millinery house and is supposed to be one of the finest trimmers out of New York City.
